Finns Deny They'll End War With Reds

DELAY REPLY TO U. S., BUT IT'LL BE 'NO'

Answer To Hull Suggestion For Peace Indicated By Party Demand.

SAYS NO PEACE OFFERED

Officials Scout Announcement Battle Against Russia Drawing To Close.

BULLETIN

HELSINKI —(INS)— Helsinki newspapers today published the text of Soviet peace terms but rejected them on the grounds that acceptance would mean "national suicide."

(By United Press)

HELSINKI — Finland was expected today to delay further her reply to the United States suggestion that she make peace with Russia but there was little doubt that the answer would be "no."

A Finnish government spokesman denied that any statement had been made by the Finnish radio or any other Finnish source predicting that Finland plans to end hostilities against Russia.

(The United Press listening post in London heard radio Helsinki broadcast the statement that "as far as our country is concerned the war is drawing towards a close." The broadcast said "Finland will not carry on the war longer than is necessary for her own safety and defense. For our country the war is clearly a defensive one.")

Finland's negative reply was indicated after the dominant Social Democratic party demanded that the government hold a secret debate in parliament before making the answer to Washington.

There was no indication whether the demand would be acceded to but a forecast of the Finnish attitude was provided by an official government denial that Russia had, as the United States contended, offered to make peace with Finland Aug. 18.

The statement said that "in the past few days reports have been spread abroad according to which Finland allegedly was presented August 18 with terms wherewith the Soviet Union was willing to conclude peace with Finland.

"This claim not only was simply made for purposes of propaganda; it is also untrue. Detailed

Hillman Calls for 3 or 4 Shifts Daily In Defense Plants; FDR Asks Labor, Industry Bury Differences

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Associate OPM Director General Sidney Hillman said today that the United States must "end the idleness of machines" by inaugurating three or four shifts daily in all key defense plants.

"Considerable progress has been made in recent months in the expansion of shift operations in the defense industries and there is prospect of more progress along this line in the near future," Hillman told the United Press.

President Roosevelt told labor delegates from 33 nations attending the final session of the international labor office conference yesterday that Americans must submerge their labor-industry differences and work "three shifts a day" to help defeat Hitler.

Hillman hoped that both management and workers in defense industries "will cooperate to expend production further along the lines proposed by the president."

Some of the so-called "continuous process" industry plants already are working 160 hours a week with four, 40-hour shifts "and I believe that this operation can and should be expanded," he said.

OPM Director William S. Knudsen was known to have approved of President Roosevelt's call for a "three-shift" defense program. He has been calling for longer working hours and privately has expressed a desire for uninterrupted production of war materials on a full 24-hour basis.

Hillman pointed out that most of the key defense industries already are operating on "multiple shift" schedules. But some machines still stand idle during part of the 24-hour day which could be used in manufacture of armaments, he said.

"We must end the idleness of machines," he said. "There must be no week-end blackout in our defense factories."

Russian Chief Says 'New Order' Will Start to Crack In Year; Battles Rage Outside Moscow; Soviets Resist Stiffly In Crimea.

BULLETIN

A NORTHEAST BRITISH TOWN—(UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill said in a speech today that "we have passed through the darkest and most perilous period" of the war and "are once more masters of our own destiny."

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(INS)—Arrival of 3,000 American soldiers in Burma as replacement for British forces in defense of the Burma road was reported today in the Tokyo Nichi Nichi, according to a broadcast by the German-controlled Amsterdam radio which was picked up in New York by CBS.

(By United Press)

A prediction of Josef V. Stalin that Adolf Hitler's new order will begin cracking up in a year came over the radio from Moscow today as reports from many quarters indicated—on the surface at least—that Axis armies were stalled on the eastern front.

Stalin spoke as Red army military strength paraded as usual through Red Square in observance of the 24th anniversary of the October revolution. But there were many striking contrasts in the background of today's defiant show of power.

Overhead Russian fighter planes buzzed in ceaseless patrol to protect the Soviet capital from Luftwaffe air attack. From 50 to 100 miles away battles still raged along the Moscow front and Berlin suggested that German artillery sounded in Stalin's ears at Red Square, although there appeared to have been little or no change in the battlefronts in a week.

Dispatches from Berlin, London and Kuibyshev reported fighting still was heavy in the Tula, Mozhaisk and Kalinin sectors outside Moscow, but for the most part these dispatches repeated the story of attack and counter-attack that has been the same for six or seven days.

In the Crimea, the Russians still fought strongly in the mountains and on the road to Kerch and the naval base of Sevastopol, although the Nazis claimed they were making progress behind heavy dive-bomber attacks in both the Crimea and the Donets basin.

Northward, on the arctic front, the Finns were said by Stockholm to be pushing a new drive over a 30-mile route from Kiestinki toward the Murmansk railroad and White sea coast in an effort to tie up that important Russian port for keeps.

There was every indication that, under German pressure, the Finns would keep on fighting and an official denial was issued at Helsinki of reports abroad that the Finnish radio had said the war was drawing to a close as far as the Finns were concerned.

On the air front, the Russians reported they had shot down 90 enemy planes in two days, mostly on the Moscow front where it was indicated that the Luftwaffe still

COUNCIL OKAYS WOODEN BRIDGE AFTER WRANGLE

Tables City Consent Measure Once But Finally Passes It To Assure Structure.

After wrangling for more than two hours, city council last night put a half-hearted "okay" on the plan of Richland county commissioners to replace the temporary, wooden North Main bridge over Touby's run with another wooden structure.

A resolution giving the county the "go ahead" signal with city permission to build the bridge was once tabled, only to be brought back an hour later and passed with council taking the stand that "if the county did not build the wooden bridge, it would not build any."

On final action six members voted to give the consent while Councilman George C. Kyle, one of the original objectors, again declined to vote in favor of the measure. Two councilmen, Lester D. Hunter and Fred Miller, were absent. Miller is ill at his home.

When the measure was first brought up, Russell D. Porch, First ward councilman, asked that the city engineer investigate the project to ascertain if the commissioners still contemplated building a wooden bridge and suggested that the city consent the measure be tabled until the December meeting.

"I'd hate to have it said that I approved the construction of a

NAMED COACH

Charles Fall, O. S. U. Graduate, To Get Appleseed Post.

Appointment of Charles Fall, graduate of Ohio State university, as coach at Johnny Appleseed junior high school was announced this morning by W. L. Miller, superintendent of Mansfield schools.

The appointment, however, must be confirmed by the board of education which is to meet in the near future.

Fall, a native of Trenton, near Middletown, will take the place of Paul Cameron who resigned the position to accept another position as physical director with the army air corps.

Since his graduation in June of 1940, Fall has been working in the Columbus Y. M. C. A., assisting with physical education work there.

We Got Enough Coal, Harold?

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — President Roosevelt today gave Harold L. Ickes the added duties of coordinator of coal for national defense.

Ickes, already serving as petroleum coordinator, was designated by the president to coordinate the handling of "solid fuel"—coal and coke—along with oil and gas problems.

WIND BLOWS IN SNOW FLURRIES

Mansfield Gets First Taste of 'Winter'; Mercury Dives To Freezing Level.

Mansfielders had their first taste of this winter's snow today as strong winds which caused considerable storm damage in the western part of the county brought this area the lowest temperature recorded throughout the state.

The mercury slid down toward freezing, hitting 33 degrees early this morning but holding above the reading of 26 degrees recorded on Oct. 28. Other sections reported low temperatures but the nearest to Mansfield's low was Hayesville with 35 degrees.

The snow fell lightly in the early part of the morning and alternated between a sleet and a light snow throughout the rest of the day.

The forecast was more continued cloudiness with colder weather and snow flurries tonight and tomorrow. The north central part of the state was promised the snow while southern cities were told to expect occasional rain.

Heavy winds tore down several main electric lines in the vicinity of Shelby last night leaving scores of homes without electric current. Falling limbs broke wires bringing current from the main cables.

Highest thermometer reading yesterday was 58 degrees. Low this morning was 33 degrees and by noon, the mercury had climbed to only 35 degrees. Average temperature for the past 24 hours was 45.5 degrees, 1.6 higher than the 16-year average.

Although the storm damage to electric lines was spread throughout the Shelby area, the northwest section of the city was hit hardest when several main cables were blown down. The Shelby Municipal Electric company had employes out repairing lines until early this morning.

Officials of the Ohio Public Service company and the Mansfield Telephone company announced that they had had no reports of storm damage in Mansfield.

8,000 Expected at Tonight's Tyger-Bulldog Gridiron Fray

Mansfield high school's football homecoming program got under way, not bright, but early this morning with the important part of the celebration scheduled for tonight at 8 p. m. at Stadium field when the Tygers and Canton McKinley Bulldogs meet in their annual gridiron battle before an anticipated crowd of more than 8,000 fans.

Coach Paul Snyder called his Tyger gridders together at 8 a. m. today for their last "skull" session before the game, going over every detail of Mansfield's plans for defense and attack.

The Tygers prepared for a battle in the mud which was reported three inches deep down the middle of the gridiron this morning.

Crowning of the homecoming queen, Etabel Hunter, was the feature event of a pep rally scheduled at the school for this afternoon. Patty Olin, Mansfield relays queen of last spring, was given the honor of crowning the football queen, surrounded by her attendants, Betty Underwood, Nancy Grimm, Marge Urich and Doris McNight.

The remainder of the program included a pep talk by Herbert R. Slough, former Mansfield high and

DISCOUNTS IT

Plant Head Sees No Sabotage In Blast That Killed 3.

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va. —(AP)— Plant Superintendent R. K. Turner, discounted almost entirely today the possibility of sabotage as federal agents and state police investigated an explosion and fire which killed three men at the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals corporation's huge plant.

H. K. Fox, 30-year-old painter, died early today of critical burns to increase the official toll to three. Turner, after a check of the company's 4,000 employes, identified Forrest Norton Leavitt, 32, and H. M. Kelley, 60, as the others killed in yesterday's blast.

The plant, largest of the multimillion dollar chemical industry in the Kanawha Valley, suffered comparatively little damage in the localized explosion and the superintendent said operations would be resumed within two or three days.

VOWS BRITISH WON'T GIVE UP

Halifax Visits Cleveland Plants, Talks To Nationality Groups.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Lord Halifax, Britain's ambassador to the United States, inspected production lines at ordnance and machine tool plants today after telling nationality groups "the day of deliverance will come."

"Come what may, Britain will not surrender," he said.

Asked what would happen should Germany reach Russia's oil supplies, he said it appeared likely Hitler would attempt to formulate a peace. Such a move would get no response from Great Britain, he asserted.

Navy Adds New Name to Casualty List of Reuben James.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The death toll in the torpedo sinking of the U. S. destroyer Reuben James stoo dat 100 today. Naval clerks, rechecking their lists of personnel, added the name of Edward Peter Saltis, boatswains mate, first class, Staunton, Ill.

REVISED RATES APPROVED FOR '42 COLLECTION

Mansfield Schedule Stays at 16 Mills Despite Passage of Special Fire Levy.

Four of the Richland county villages and school districts which voted tax levies or bond issues during the past year will begin paying for them in higher 1942 tax rates, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

The new rates, just approved by the state tax commission, will be higher in four of the county's seven villages and lower in three others and in the city of Shelby. Plymouth, Shiloh, Bellville and South Boulevards will pay higher rates.

Although Mansfield approved a half-mill levy for more fire protection by a huge margin, the city's 1942 tax rate wil remain at 16 mills, the same as this year, the auditor said. Payment of old bonds will drop the rate enough to offset the additional half-mill.

The Madison township rate will drop to 13.40 mills from 13.60 mills this year. Reduction of the Mansfield Conservancy district debt accounts for the decrease, Wolfe said.

Greatest increase in village rates will be at Shiloh where voters approved a two-mill school operating levy at Tuesday's election. The rate there will be 17.40 mills

FOUR RECOVER

Go To Hospital After Car Catches Fire, Runs Wild.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Four of the nine persons injured when a suburban Lakewood street car caught fire after an explosion and ran four blocks out of control were recovering in a hospital today. The others were slightly hurt getting out of the car.

Those still receiving treatment were Oliver C. Jollie, 48, the car's motorman; Mrs. Elsie Knudsen, 46; Mrs. Arlene Germany, 50, and Mrs. Queen Flaugh.

A short circuit in the control box caused the explosion. Fire broke out in the motorman's compartment. Conductor Frederick Zuber pulled the trolley to stop the car.

BOLSTER REDS WITH BILLION

U. S. Gives Credit, Roosevelt Orders Munitions Stores Delivered at Once.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States backed the hard-pressed armies of Russia with a billion dollar lease-lend credit today.

President Roosevelt directed deliveries "to commence immediately and to be fulfilled in the largest possible amounts" until the huge stores of munitions represented by the cerdit are in Soviet hands.

This new assistance program posed for the nation a stupendous task both in production and transportation if the supplies are to reach the Russian fronts in effective time, but Mr. Roosevelt indicated definite confidence that the job would be done.

The unheralded decision to extend lease-lend aid to Russia was announced late yesterday by the state department.

The announcement was in the form of an exchange of correspondence between Mr. Roosevelt

SETS NOV. 20

Bricker Proclaims 'Early' Thanksgiving Date For Ohio.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Governor Bricker today proclaimed Thursday, Nov. 20, as Thanksgiving day in Ohio.

Although President Roosevelt has yet to issue an official proclamation, he has said he will designate that day for the national Thanksgiving. Nineteen states will observe Thanksgiving on Nov. 27.

EARLY START

Red Cross Gets 100 Per Cent Firm, 5 Days Before Drive.

Stepping to the front five days before Richland county chapter of the Red Cross launches its annual Roll Call drive for 22,000 members, the Mansfield Rapid Transit company today reported an "all-out" membership for this organization of 34 employes.

G. F. Van Tilburg, general superintendent of the company, informed Red Cross executive offices this morning that company had enrolled 100 per cent without waiting to be solicited.

Although some preliminary work towards enrolling local groups and industries has been done by the city and county Roll Call organization, no direct canvass will be made until Tuesday, when the nation-wide "All-Out for Red Cross" Roll Call begins.

The county drive for 22,000 members, more than double the quota last year, will be conducted by approximately 650 workers.

38 SENTENCED

Columbus Men Sentenced On Gambling Counts.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.)— Common Pleas Judge Robert P. Duncan today handed 10-day jail sentences to 38 men who had pleaded guilty to gambling charges.

Sentences, and in some cases fines, were given to four slot machine operators, 25 race horse bookmakers and nine numbers house operators.

One Killed, Four Injured as Cars Crash Near Mansfield

A Dayton man was killed instantly and four other persons were injured, one critically, in two traffic accidents late yesterday on U. S. Route 42 south of Mansfield as a light rain made highways treacherous.

Oakley W. Parks, 28, Dayton, was killed when the car he was driving sideswiped a truck two miles south of Mt. Gilead shortly after 3 p. m. yesterday.

John Layman, 20, Marietta, who was riding with him, suffered a skull fracture and fracture of his left leg, and is in a critical condition in Mansfield General hospital.

Also in the hospital here is Richard Kahler, of Ada, O., who was in the same car. He suffered rib fractures, but it was not believed he is in a serious condition.

Sheriff Oscar George of Morrow county said the car driven by Parks had skidded into a ditch just before the accident with the truck. The car had gone only 200 yards after it was backed out of the ditch when Parks apparently lost control of it and it collided with the truck, the sheriff said.

G. W. Marks, 28, Massillon, the truck driver, was uninjured. The victim and the two injured men were employed on construction of an extension for the Morrow County Rural Electric cooperative.

Parks' body was taken to Coshocton for funeral services.

See Passage as Neutrality Change Bill Nears Ballot

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Assistant Republican Leader Warren R. Austin of Vermont called for complete repeal of the neutrality act today as a means of defeating Adolf Hitler who "has a definite plan of conquering us with his national socialism."

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The momentous legislation permitting American merchant ships to carry arms and sail the high seas at will moved toward a senate vote of 53 senators—four more than necessary to pass the measure.

Democratic Leader Barkley considered the chances excellent that the chamber would vote by nightfall and return the measure for concurrence to the house, which originally approved legislation limited to arming ships.

Barkley arranged to ask the senate today to agree unanimously on a debate limitation—probably one holding each senator to a maximum of 20 minutes—after Senator Nye (R-ND), an opponent of the pending measure, had completed an hour-long speech.

Nye and other opposition leaders agreed at a strategy conference late yesterday to abandon any idea of a filibuster against the measure. They decided, informants said, there was a better chance for its defeat in the house if senate action was not held up by long drawn-out speech-making.

Leaders agreed that the house would not reach a vote on senate changes in the legislation before next Wednesday. Administration forces said they had ample votes there to approve the broadened measure.

PREDICTS NAZI CRACKUP WILL START IN YEAR

was carrying out strong attempts to bombard the Soviet capital without marked success.

The Royal Air Force bombed targets at Wilhelmshaven, Hamburg and elsewhere in northwestern Germany and also renewed extensive attacks on central Italy and Sicily.

All of these developments on the military field provided a more impressive background than might have been expected two weeks ago for Stalin's speech in the Red Square, although his call for Britain to open a second fighting front in western Europe or the Mediterranean area brought no response from London.

Stalin said that the Germans were draining their strength both on the battle field, on the home front and on the scattered front where they are fighting rebels throughout occupied Europe.

Hitler is facing "a catastrophe," he said, and the Germans may crack under the strain within a year or even within six months, whereas the Russians are stronger now and in a better strategic position than when they fought military forces of many countries 24 years ago.

The position of the Red army—already receiving American and British supplies under a $1,000,000,000 loan arranged by President Roosevelt—appeared to be exerting an increasingly important influence on the threat of war in the Far East.

Japanese Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo was understood to have sent a personal message to President Roosevelt saying, in effect, that a settlement of tension in the Pacific must be reached quickly or Japan will be forced to "use other means" to break the British and American economic blockade.

Presumably the Tojo message was couched in language that avoided any threats or ultimatum, such as have been repeatedly made by the Japanese press.

There were, in fact, many indications that the Japanese cabinet was putting up a strong front through the press in an effort to make it seem that Japan was on the verge of striking by force against the United States and Britain in the hope of persuading Washington that a compromise was necessary on the Japanese expansion program.

The journey of Saburo Kurusu, now at Manila, by air to Washington in a "last effort" to reach a settlement with the United States was regarded as emphasizing Japan's desire to force an immediate showdown.

At the same time, Japanese military preparations apparently for a blow at Thailand or the Burma road or both continued and a total of 120,000 Japanese troops were reported massed in Indo-China. Ten Chinese divisions were understood to be on the frontier guarding the path to the Burma road and military experts said that infantry operations in that direction would be extremely difficult for the Japanese.

Nazis Call Stalin Speech 'Swan Song'

BERLIN — (UP) — Authorized German quarters, commenting today on Josef Stalin's Moscow speech of yesterday, said that "in military history it probably will go down as the Soviet tyrant's swan song."

"It was the voice of a tyrant who has lost all contact with the outside world, who has lost all touch with his people and sees himself marching to his doom," a spokesman said.

"Stalin's mental case is that of an Asiatic village despot who got his military knowledge by reading detective stories. His figures are lies. The whole basic tone is sheer desperation."

Two U. S. Missions Ordered to Russia

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Two American military missions have been ordered to the Middle East to speed up deliveries of war supplies under the lend-lease program to Great Britain and Russia, it was announced today.

The first mission, headed by Brig. Gen. Russell Maxwell, will be stationed at an undisclosed city in Egypt to cooperate with English officers in speeding up delivery of war supplies from the Red Sea to the large, British army spread through Syria and Iran.

The second mission, headed by Brig. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, will be stationed at Basra, Iraq, to improve railroad facilities running from Basra through Iran to Soviet Russia.

Report Sinking of Second Jap Steamer

BERLIN — (INS) — The Japanese steamer Taku Maru has sunk in the Sea of Japan off Cape Gamoi with the loss of 22 lives, the Berlin radio announced today.

Cause of the sinking was not given.

The 3,275-ton steamer carried a crew of 46, of which 24 were rescued, it was stated.

(This is the second sinking of a Japanese ship reported in the last 24 hours. The passenger liner Kehi Maru went down in the Sea of Japan off Korea late Wednesday night after hitting a floating mine. There are 144 passengers and crew members still missing, while 17 are known to be dead and nine seriously injured.)

Washington's Ghetto Nazi Leader Charges

BERLIN—(U.P.)—A Nazi spokesman said today that if President Roosevelt can call Berlin a slavemarket "then I think we are justified in calling Washington a ghetto."

"Roosevelt," said this spokesman, "is the personification of mania and the Jews are using him as their instrument. History some day will describe him as 'America's misfortune'".

In addressing the meeting of the international labor office in Washington yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt said Berlin was a "slave market."

Deaths In Jap Ship Sinking Total 20

TOKYO —(U.P.)— Known deaths in the mine-sinking of the Japanese steamer Kehi Maru rose to 20 today and a Japanese spokesman sought Washington support of Tokyo's protest to Soviet Russia, declaring that floating explosives iovlated the freedom of the seas.

"America must support Japan's stand on this issue," said Koh Ishii, cabinet information bureau spokesman.

A Domei dispatch from Keijo said reports to the Korean government general showed 281 rescued, 111 still missing and 20 dead from the passengers and crew of the Kehi Maru, 4,532-ton vessel which went down Wednesday night about 130 miles out in the Sea of Japan, and southeast of the minefields of the Russian port of Vladivostok.

8,000 TO SEE GAME TONIGHT

Big Crowd Expected For Tyger Homecoming Gridiron Match With Canton Bulldogs.

Ohio State gridder, a song by the "Four Co-Eds," a song by George Knachstedt, "Sweetheart of Mansfield High," statistics on Canton McKinley's team by Assistant Coach Vern Hoffman, introduction of co-captains Ken Smith and John "Duke" Weber by Coach Snyder, and short talks by them, a "ballet" dance by 12-A boys attired in tissue paper, a conga by the drum majorettes, a skit by the girl leaders club, introduction of the team in "V" formation with the queen and her court in the center, and singing of the Mansfield Victory song.

Tonight's expected crowd will include 1,100 fans from Canton, an original allotment of 800 tickets to Canton having been increased by 300 when more seats were obtained. Various Canton groups have chartered special buses for the trip.

All reserved seats for the game have been sold out, but 1,000 general admission tickets will be placed on sale tonight for seats in additional bleachers which have been set up.

CERTIFIED

Galion Loan Co. Deposits To Be Protected By U. S.

WASHINGTON— A certificate of insurance which provides for the safety of savings up to $5,000 for each investor has been issued by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation to the Tri-County Savings and Loan Company — formerly the Guaranty Savings and Loan company—of Galion, Ohio, Oscar R. Kreutz, FSLIC General Manager, announced today.

The Tri-County association was organized in 1919, and twice since that time has increased its capital structure to the present strength of $100,000. This capital strength it is pointed out, is in addition to the Federal insurance protection. Affiliaton with the FSLIC now joins the association with the 2,307 other savings, building and loan associations throughout the nation—whose net assets aggregate more than $3,000,000,000—which provide this safety insurance for savings.

STUDY REMOVAL OF U. S. MARINES

Officials Consider Withdrawing Forces From China, Says FDR.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— President Roosevelt said today that the United States is considering withdrawing American marine detachments now stationed in China.

The chief executive would not elaborate on a brief press conference statement which he read from a typewritten memorandum. The memorandum said the government is giving consideration to the question of the withdrawal of American marine detachments now maintained ashore at Peiping, Tientsin, and Shanghai.

LEAD CUT

BUCYRUS—Official count of ballots cast in contest for Bucyrus third ward councilman gave the successful candidate, Edgar H. Carter, the lead by one vote over his opponent, Rollen Koons, who was a newcomer in politics. Carter was a candidate for reelection.

Errors revealed in the official count was the loss of 43 votes for Joe Eaton, independent candidate for mayor and the loss of three votes for Paul Kennedy, who defeated the incumbent Harold Metcalf for city solicitior by a margin of 41 votes. Kennedy was the only Republican named to office in Bucyrus.

Two persons suffered minor injuries last night in an accident involving two automobiles and a truck on U. S. Route 42 just south of Lexington.

Henry A. Ford, 18, Mansfield, suffered lacerations on his head when the car he was driving skidded into a truck at a narrow bridge, sttae highway patrolmen said. Also injured was Mark Fisher, Cardington, a passenger in the other car which was driven by Willis W. Murray, 35, Ashley. Fisher received head and face wounds. He and Ford were treated by a physician.

Patrolmen said Murray's car crashed into the one driven by Ford following the truck-automobile collision at the bridge. Robert B. Pearce, 21, Berea, the truck driver, escaped injury.

Hartley W. Voshel, 36, of Shelby, was fined $200 and costs and lost his driver's license for a year today when he was found guilty in Mansfield municipal court of driving while under the influence of alcohol. He was arrested last night by deputy sheriffs after his car collided with two others on State Route 39 near Springmill.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended $100 of the fine on the condition that Voshel pays for the damage to the two cars.

TAX RATES GO UP IN 4 AREAS

as compared with 15.40 this year.

School bonds for a new building at Plymouth will increase the rate in Plymouth village to 16 mills from 14.80 this year, while a village operating levy at Bellville, voted Tuesday, will push the rate there up to 17.40 mills. It was 16.60 this year.

The South Boulevards rate will go to 15.80 mills next year as the village begins paying for its new sewer system. The present rate is 14.60 mills.

Lexington's rate will drop three-tenths of a mill, but it will still be the highest in the county at 21.40 mills. It is 21.70 mills this year.

Lucas approved an $18,000 bond issue for water department improvements last Tuesday, but the village tax rate will go down four-tenths of a mill in 1942, the auditor's figures showed. The bond issue will not go on the tax books until next year and it will not be payable until 1943, the auditor explained. The 1942 Lucas rate will be 15 mills as compared with 15.40 this year.

Debt reductions in Shelby and Butler will reduce their rates. Shelby property owners will pay 16.40 mills, four-tenths of a mill under this year, and the Butler rate will be 17.40 mills, two-tenths of a mill less than this year's figure.

Board to Decide On Tie Vote In School Contest

side the county, but the election board said the apparent winners were:

Bellville, Paul F. Yarger, Calvin A. Byers, and Blake Garber; Butler village, Ivan Gower, Kinsey R. Morgan, and R. R. Roberts; Lexington, Lucy Pollock, Clark Robinson, and Ralph Dickson; Cass township, Arthur Stober, Mrs. Grace Wolfersberger, and Raymond Wolford; Lucas, H. M. McConnell, S. R. Baughman, and Dr. Paul J. Lee.

Plymouth village, John F. Root, T. R. Ford, and C. L. Hannum; Springfield township, Louise Walker, H. W. Taylor, and Walter Turner; Union rural district, Robert Smith and John Humbert; Mifflin township, L. C. Peterson, E. A. Leibhart, and Charles Stoner.

In Butler, two present members of the board, Percy Crunkilton and J. W. McFarland, were defeated for re-election in a heated race. Kinsey R. Morgan was the only member who won reelection.

All of the districts except the Union rural district elected three school board members. Only two were chosen in the Union district.

BOLSTER REDS WITH BILLION

and Stalin. In a letter dated Oct. 30, Mr. Roosevelt wrote that the $1,000,000,000 credit was being made available without interest, and that Soviet repayment would not commence until five years after the war's end.

Stalin agreed to the credit terms and voiced the "sincere gratitude" of Russia for this "unusually substantial aid against our common enemy, bloodthirsty Hitlerism."

Capitol Hill reacted along expected lines. The staunch supporters of administration foreign policy saw in the decision a wise move to bolster the Russian stand against Hitler and thus contribute to his eventual downfall.

A chorus of condemnation arose from the opposite camp. Mr. Roosevelt was charged with giving away the huge sum without the consent of the American taxpayers who foot the bill. Senator Nye (R., N. D.) commented acidly: "When we passed the lease-lend law, it was to aid democracies. Now it is to give Brother Joe 1,000,000,000 smackers with no ifs, no ands, no buts."

The credit will come from the $5,983,000,000 second lease-lend appropriation which congress recently enacted. When the measure was under consideration in the house and senate, the administration forces balked opposition efforts to add a proviso specifically excluding Russia from all benefits paid for by the fund.

Immediate interest seemed to focus on the problem of delivery. The navy recently has been playing an important role in insuring deliveries to Britain, and some thought it might also be used to protect the heavy shipments to the Soviet Union.

The question of delivery likewise spotlighted diplomatic discussions now in progress with Japan and Finland, since both those nations are in a position to menace major supply routes to Russia.

Japan has voiced strong opposition—chiefly through the Japanese press—to the American supply shipments, which have been going to Vladivostok, the Soviet's only Pacific seaport

The Finnish army, cooperating with the Germans, has been waging a campagin to cut the railway linking besieged Leningrad with Murmansk, northern Russian port which has been outside the Nazis' reach.

Hostilities in the Pacific probably would immediately involve Vladivostok and make it impossible for any American supplies to reach the Red army through that port.

Other supply routes to the Soviet include a long, roundabout voyage through Arctic waters to Archangel, a far northern port utilized by allied expeditionary forces in World war days, and another long—and as yet uncompleted—overland route thorugh Iran (Persia).

EX-PASTOR DIES

Former Shelby Minister Taken By Death In Cleveland.

SHELBY — Rev H. F. Thompson, 87, father of Mrs Boyd Smith of Shelby, died this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Selby Scraggs, in Cleveland.

He formerly lived in Lexington and Parkman where he was pastor of the Congregational church for 26 years before going to Cleveland five years ago.

In addition to the two daughters, he is survived by another daughter, Mrs. F. E. Nubler of Spokane, Wash.

The body was brought to the Barkdull funeral home in this city pending funeral arrangements.

Bell Tolls for Bridge Tolls as At Sandusky Bay

SANDUSKY —(AP)— The Sandusky Bay bridge, where toll takers collect from all comers, is having detour trouble and the state bridge commission is wondering how to bolster receipts.

Collectors on the longest state-owned bridge, who don't issue passes even to the governor or the army, complain that the September closing of Route 2 west of the span for new paving has caused a marked drop in revenue.

Ray Palmer, bridge commission secretary, said that although the 664,767 crossings from the start of the fiscal year, May 1, through Sept. 30 were 32,330 more than for the corresponding 1940 period, the September total of 119,795 was 7,653 less than for the same month last year and indicated a further decline was in prospect.

Since the paving project won't be completed until next year, the commission has scheduled a meeting in Port Clinton Monday to discuss with highway officials the possibility of detour routing more favorable to bridge income.

BRIEF ILLNESS FATAL TO CHILD

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neff Dies at Home.

Diane Joy Neff, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Neff, died yesterday at the family home on Colwell avenue, Mansfield R. D. 3, following a brief illness.

Born July 9, 1939, in Mansfield, she is survived besides her parents by one sister, Patricia Ann; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Neff, all of Mansfeld.

Rev. G. E. Swoyer of the First English Lutheran church will conduct service tomorrow at 2 p. m., in the Wappner funeral home. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

The body will remain at the home of the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, 152 South Foster street, until tomorrow morning.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1941.

One word brings on another—and sometimes a whole flock of 'em.

Thanksgiving will come early again this year—but starting next year President Roosevelt will permit it to resume its customary place in the calendar.

It was Douglas Jerrold, back a hundred years ago, who thought to remark: "Happiness grows at our own firesides, and is not to be picked in strangers' gardens."

More Japanese Maneuvers

WITH Saburo Kurusu speeding to the United States as a special Japanese envoy bearing a "peace formula" from his country, there is absence of optimism in Washington that anything will come of Japan's proposals, especially if these are based on the idea expressed by the controlled Japanese newspaper which said: "This is the last opportunity (for the United States) to make amends for aggression and to restore the occasion for an amicable settlement."

Tie-up of Japan with the Axis powers, war against China, and territorial greed in general, makes it difficult to find grounds of agreement in dealing with that nation.

Action against Russia seems to be awaiting only an assurance of success of the Nazi invaders and there are also indications of intent to make a supreme effort to clean up "the China incident." Their latest strategy in that direction seems to be a drive westward through the mountains from southern China to cut the Burma road, on which American supplies go to Chiang Kai Shek's army in the west.

But all of Japan's war cries come around to the one big problem of oil. Since the United States, as a sensible matter of self-defense, cut off Japan's oil supplies from this country, the Tokyo war-makers know their operations are limited. They doubtless have some oil hoarded for military use, but not enough for a big war, and they don't know when they can get any more.

Traffic Improvement Noticeable

TRAFFIC COMMISSIONER BOALS is displaying commendable judgment in moving slowly but persistently toward betterment of traffic conditions in Mansfield and considerable improvement is already being noted—although much yet remains to be done.

Without any appearance of a "crusade," the new traffic squad has been doing an excellent job thus far, with enough arrests to indicate watchfulness in the matter of excessive speed on Mansfield streets and attention to other habitual violations of traffic regulations.

Banning left turns at one or more of the principal Main street intersections, and confining parking to one side of more narrow residence streets will contribute further to betterment of traffic conditions. All-night parking, without lights, on residence streets, also seems to merit more attention than it has thus far been given.

Mayor Locke's idea that something should be done to prevent obstruction of streets by cars parked in one place for weeks, "and even months," has merit and should be acted upon without delay.

As the mayor stated, "streets are primarily intended for traffic, not for parking," and it scarcely needs explaining that streets are not the proper place for over-night or long-time storage. A car left standing at one place on a street for as long as 24 hours should at least justify police inquiry, on the theory that it may have been stolen and abandoned.

Priorities Affect Your Stores

THERE can be no question of the need of strict material priorities at a time when defense demands are straining resources. But, unless these priorities are carefully and wisely applied, there is a danger that normal life will be unnecessarily disrupted.

An example is found in the present-day need of retailing for materials and supplies which are absolutely necessary to efficient operation. A modern store, for instance, must have adequate refrigeration, cutting machines, scales, paper and bags and a host of other articles. It must have repair materials. In many cases, priority ratings are making it extremely difficult for stores to obtain them. That is creating an extremely serious problem for all kinds of stores and is a problem which directly concerns the consumer.

All Americans look to retailing for efficient service. They take it for granted that sanitary standards will be of the best. They take it for granted that they will be given honest weight, and will receive precisely what is ordered. If stores are not permitted to obtain supplies which are vital to their operation, it is clear that standards of service will suffer as a result.

Shortage of 'Cannon Fodder'

THERE are many indications lately that Germany is running short of cannon-fodder, along with her other privations. Fresh recruits are called up oftener, and in greater numbers, and they are younger. Observers tell of seeing mere boys in the ranks.

At the same time more and more workmen are released from the factories to go to the front. Also more and more workmen are drafted from the populations that Hitler has conquered, and rushed into the factories to replace Germans. He has even drafted into the army men from the enslaved nations, but he doesn't dare do that on a big scale because he cannot trust them.

Napoleon, too, ran short of cannon-fodder in his wars, and eventually he had more aliens than Frenchmen in his army. That was easier to do then because nationality was not so strong. But today patriotism rises so high, even in the conquered countries, that the master-killer still has to depend almost entirely on his own Germans.

One writer refers to Germany as "a comparatively new nation, with no parliamentary or democratic traditions"—so present conduct may merely evidence youthful exuberance of spirit.

"How are you?" may be, as Arthur Guiterman says, "a greeting, not a question." But it's sad, how many people take it literally and start telling all their symptoms.

Michigan is disturbed over finding that "Mud Lake" is at 172 different places in the state—which tends to confuse tourists looking for some particular kind of mud.

Medical science is looking toward a life span of more than 200 years—by which time promotion of pension plans for everyone over 150 will probably be in order.

THE BOWLEGGED GATE KEEPER

Listen World!

Don't Blame God!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE WRITES, "What is the question they ask you most often, these days?"

That's tragically easy to answer. The question they ask most often these days is this:

"WHY DOES GOD LET THIS WAR HAPPEN? WHY DOESN'T GOD STOP IT? HOW CAN A GOD OF LOVE AND MERCY LET SUCH CRUELTY CONTINUE?"

Every day scores of people ask these questions. They are not a particularly religious people. They do not claim to have a religious attitude. But they have a realistic attitude.

THEY BELIEVE, PROFOUNDLY IN CAUSE AND EFFECT. Given certain conditions, they believe that certain results will follow.

They believe, for example, that one plus one will equal two.

They believe that electricity will generate energy. They do not know what electricity is . . . or what energy is. But they have watched the functioning of these forces. They have seen what happens. They believe in what happens.

And, by the same token, they believe in other happenings. They believe in God. They believe in God because they have seen the evidence of God. They have seen all the brave and beautiful things which are a proof of God. They have seen Goodness. They have seen Justice and Honesty, Courage and Kindness.

THEY HAVE SEEN THESE THINGS WHICH ARE A PROOF OF GOD . . . AND, BECAUSE THEY HAVE SEEN THEM, THEY BELIEVE IN GOD. THEY BELIEVE THAT GOD WORKS . . . THAT GOODNESS WORKS.

Yet it doesn't!

What do you mean, "It doesn't?"

I'm no authority on God . . . or the workings of God. Yet it seems to me that the answer to this doubt is very simple . . . even with our limited vision. You say, "God doesn't work!" But I say, "It's we who don't work . . . it's we who fail."

WHY DOES GOD LET IT HAPPEN?

GOD DOESN'T LET IT HAPPEN.

WE LET IT HAPPEN!

Once, in ancient times, wise and reverent men asked, "Why does God let small-pox happen? Why does God let millions perish because of the plague?" And, in my own day, equally devout men were horrified when doctors used "twilight sleep" to lessen the agony of child-birth. Yet now we know that pangs and pains may be controlled. May be controlled by our own wisdom. God does not wish them. God does not will them. They are the result of our own stupidity!

WHEN WILL WE STOP PASSING THE BUCK TO GOD? . . . WHEN WILL WE STOP BLAMING GOD FOR OUR OWN IGNORANCE . . . OUR OWN CRUELTY . . . OUR OWN FOOLISHNESS?

If you let poisonous matter drain into the village well, you will have typhoid. If you let hate and stupidity, greed and graft pollute your state or federal government, you will have death . . . the death of all that is proud and fine, honest and brave in men.

BUT GOD WILL NOT HAVE WILLED THAT DEATH.
WE WILL HAVE WILLED IT.
WE WILL HAVE FIXED
OUR DYING EYES
ON THE GOD
WE REJECTED.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The famous Battle of Tippecanoe occurred on this day in 1811. The formidable Shawnee leaders, Tecumseh and his twin brother "The Prophet," were the Indian leaders intent on resisting further encroachment on their land. William Henry Harrison, governor of the Indian territory, not only succeeded in driving them off, but also in burning their abandoned village.

Timely Editorial

Termite Menace Belittled.

Termites, you know, are tiny creatures that look like ants only they are white and they make a diet of dead wood. Because so much has been said about them recently, some would-be house builders have argued against using wood, because, they said, in case of a termite attack, whole subdivision populations might find themselves homeless.

We may take courage. There's nothing to it. The reassurance is on no less authority than that of Frank E. Lutz, curator of entomology on the American Museum of Natural History. In an article in Natural History magazine, he says there has been no marked increase in the number of these insects.

He even concedes termites a useful place in the scheme of nature. They clear away stumps and fallen timber in forests. "In doing this, they are very beneficial to the earth," he says. All that man needs in building his habitations is to use common sense.—Detroit News.

Fewer Epidemics In Army Camps.

—By DR. CLENDENING

ASSEMBLING men from different parts of the country and widely different environments into the close contact of military mobilization favors the spread of infectious diseases. Outbreaks and epidemics are bound to occur. To prevent them as far as possible is one of the great problems of the administrative department of our new army.

From the record so far, the efforts have met with astonishing success. There has been not one-twentieth the trouble with epidemics that attended the mobilization of 1917-1918.

Zinsser suggested a scheme of gradual mobilization, consisting of regional aggregations of recruits for a few months before concentration in larger groups, of men from widely separated parts of the country. Undoubtedly this has played a part in the small incidence of epidemics in the present mobilization.

In 1917-1918 thousands of men were thrown together at one time, and they did not have a chance to acquire a gradual immunity to each others' carrier infections.

Of course the control of typhoid fever, diphtheria and smallpox is carried out by vaccination rigorously administered. These infections which were the bane of armies in other times are things of the past. For troops going to tropical stations we have the possibilities of vaccination against yellow fever, cholera, plague and typhus fever. The routine use of tetanus toxoid to prevent lockjaw is recommended and being tried.

Respiratory Diseases.

The hazard of respiratory diseases, such as influenza and pneumonia, can at the present state of our knowledge be met only with general precautionary measures. A board has recently been established by the secretary of war to "make immediate arrangements to control respiratory diseases and reduce their mortality to a minimum."

A precaution which I saw being carried out in an army hospital was the use of curtains between every bed in the wards. We learned the value of this late in the last war. The curtains cut down the incidence of cross infection. Respiratory diseases are spread by the large droplets, which contain myriads of bacteria, coughed and sneezed up from throat, lungs and nose.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Claim Them Today.

Take then, the present, it is all
Of which you can be sure.
Time was and time will be, time will Forever more endure.

But you are fragile and you have
Today alone to hold.
You cannot claim the future's store
All that it may enfold.

Is mystery, uncertain, faint
Beneath a doubtful star.
Claim what you can today, you have
Secure, but things that are.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

British Short on Trained Crews, More Efficient Operation Needed

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Admiral Jerry Land, Republican chairman of the maritime commission, was testifying on Capitol Hill in executive session regarding the reasons for arming U. S. merchant ships.

Among other things, he was telling congressmen why Danish, Italian and Axis ships seized in American ports had been placed under the Panamanian flag instead of being turned over to the British to be run as lease-lend vessels. The reason, Admiral Land said, was that the United States wanted to retain control over the ships. And once they got to Liverpool, if running under the British flag, the United States might not be able to say where they should sail next.

This brought a mild protest from several members of congress who remarked that it was strange we couldn't trust our lease-lend Allies.

Admiral Land also discoursed on a purported plan to arm U. S. merchant ships with "ash-cans" (depth bombs), which, exploding under the water, shake loose the plates of a submarine by underwater percussion.

Afterward, Congressman Charles Dewey of Illinois, who is on old Republican friend of Land, took the admiral aside and said:

"Look here, Jerry, why do you want to take advantage of these poor midwest congressmen who haven't been near tidewater? You know perfectly well that if one of your 'Ugly Ducklings' (latest type merchant ship) dropped an 'ash-can' overboard her stern would be blown off."

Note—Destroyers are able to drop depth bombs because their high speed, around 30 knots, permits them to get away before the bomb explodes. Most merchant ships, however, travel too slowly to get away.

Crew Shortage.

REAL facts about arming U. S. merchant ships have been confused in a welter of debate. But here is the situation as near as we can get it.

There is no distrust of the British regarding the future routing of our ships or Panamanian ships if placed under the British flag.

The chief reason for sending U. S. ships into the war zone under the American flag is that the British are getting hard up for crews. Thousands of tons of British shipping have been sunk, and with them, thousands of British seamen. Especially lacking today are engineers. Deck hands are not hard to get. But many lease-lend cargoes have been held up a few days in recent weeks waiting for British crews. Because of this scarcity, Panamanian ships have been manned by checkerboard crews of various nationalities.

Another reason for sending American ships into the war zone is efficiency of operation. It is a tough job to find the right ships these days to carry heavy tanks, which cannot be easily hoisted into the holds of small vessels. A British or Panamanian ship large enough for this is not always available.

Six Guns Per Ship.

HOWEVER, the arming of American ships, any way you look at it, is a mixed blessing. Many of the guns to be mounted were either built or designed in 1902, the type used on U. S. ships during the World war. However, they are good guns for submarine shooting, and in addition the ships will carry anti-aircraft guns and four heavy machine guns to protect them from dive-bombers.

The biggest U. S. merchant ships will carry 4-inch and up to 5-inch guns, depending on whether they have reinforced decks. World war ships still have reinforced after-decks, while all new U. S. ships built since 1936 carry reinforced decks both fore and aft.

Without these reinforced decks, the percussion from a 5-inch gun would shake open the seams of the ordinary merchant vessel.

At present the navy has on hand about 400 guns, which will arm about 200 ships out of the total U. S. merchant marine of 1,200 ships. However, the great majority of our merchant marine is used in coastwise trade, the Gulf, the Caribbean and South American waters. Two hundred armed ships, it is figured, will be enough for the time being.

The armament on these will be sufficient to cope with any submarine in the summer months. In the winter, however, with poor visibility, heavy fog and long hours of twilight it will be a tough job. The main problem is to see the submarine.

Paging Vice President.

LOUIS H. HARRIS, one of the executives in the office of price administration, was trying to phone the vice president of the United States, who is head of two defense agencies. To locate him Harris called the White House operator.

After several minutes of delay, she came back with this harassed query: "Are you sure there's a Henry Wallace who works here?"

Army Waste.

IF OTHER army camps are like Camp Meade, Maryland, the army is throwing away enough good food to feed a large section of starving Europe.

The hog farmer who collects Meade's garbage found, the other day, that a large box of fresh fish had been set out for garbage collection. He asked the cook if there was some mistake.

"No, there's no mistake. We served fish and there was that much left over. It's not enough for another meal, so we have to throw it out."

Another time, when the men left camp for maneuvers, 150 pounds of butter were thrown away as garbage.

Merry-Go-Round.

VICE PRESIDENT Henry Wallace and 83-year-old Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, are like schoolboys when it comes to riding the Capitol's famous underground railway. They always dash for the front seat. . . . A second baby is on the way at the Tom Corcorans, former top braintruster. Their first child, a girl, was born in January, 1940. . . . U. S. highway experts, returning from Britain, report that direct hits on bridges from the air are less destructive than on tunnels. A bomb hit on a bridge frequently resulted in nothing more serious than a quickly reparable hole, while underground roadways were completely wrecked by indirect hits because the earth is a carrier of explosion vibrations.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Though burying one's head in the sand is a good way to get away from it all, a much better way is to stroll in the wine cellars of the St. Moritz with George Zografos, who, among wine stewards, is something of a poet, historian, and philosopher.

Under his guidance, the parade of bottles, with their multi-colored content and gay, curious labels, is something like the grand finale of a Victor Herbert operetta. We were far underground. The world with its wars and its shabby concepts of honor was blocked out. The only Budapest here was tokay wine. The France I saw was Cliquot and Bollinger.

I weighed a bottle of Metaxas, brandy in my hand. Several years ago I had spent an interesting evening with Georges Metaxas, scion of that ancient family of Greek brandy merchants. He is in occupied Greece now. When I saw him, he was talking enthusiastically of the creation of a new United States of Europe. Today no one knows where he is. He may be a guerilla, hiding in the Greek hills. He may be dead. I asked my friend and guide whether the Metaxas stuff was rare now.

"Yes," he replied, "almost unprocurable. Two days before the occupation a shipload did get out, but it was torpedoed. Somehow it managed to make an African port, and the brandy was tossed on the wharves, waiting to be transferred to another ship. Eventually, they did get another ship, but that was months ago. No one knows where the ship or the brandy is today.

I PICKED up a bottle of a strange liquer called goldwasser....Through it drifted tiny flecks of pure gold....Yes, you can drink gold, all right. It does not harm you. Gold doesn't rust.

As my eye roved the line of strangely transparent cordials I had the feeling that here were the remnants of a vanished race. ..."That mariner, that cointreau—it is not to be had even if you are willing to stand on your ear," George said. "And as for price, my dear fellow, one doesn't ask what a price would be, one pays anything, gladly, if only the stuff were procurable. But it isn't."

That curious, secret nectar of the Dominican monks, Benedictine, is vanishing too. The importers say simply that the stores are exhausted. I glanced at the three huge letters on the bottle, D. O. M., which some say means the Dominican Order of Monks. That's a pretty story, all right. Only, it isn't quite true. D. O. M., or so I am told, is for the Latin phrase. Deus Omnus Magnus, which, when translated, means "From God most good, most great."

GEORGE ZOGRAFOS today is a worried man. His mother is 99 years old. The last he heard of her she was in Volos, Greece. Volos used to be a big port. It is in ruins now. By a curious coincidence I was talking to another friend of mine some months ago. His name was Theodore Pringos, born in Greece but a U. S. citizen now and a commander of the American Legion. He was worried about his mother. He had had no word of her since the occupation. I promised to help him and I asked him where she lived. He wrote out her name and address. The address was Volos, Greece!

A Farmer's Diary

Forest-Minded

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A FARMER friend has planted a new woodlot on a rough plot of ground on his farm, and he invited me to come and see it. I stopped the other morning and found him out along the newly-planted field of trees—seedlings of pine and hard wood.

"How many did you plant?" I asked.

"More than three thousand. They were two years old when I got 'em and I only paid a penny apiece. They can't be handled for less. I'm aimin' to plant that other rough pasture—20 acres. My father says there used to be a strong spring at the foot of that hill 70 years ago. Now there's just a trickle. That whole field was in forest once—cattle would thirst and starve on it now. I'm pretty sure if the trees grow over that land again, the fine spring'll come back."

"But not in your time, and mine."

"No—but maybe when our grandchildren are gettin' old," he said calculatingly. "I'd like to show you something else."

We stepped into his car and drove a short way, then parked and crossed a clover strip to the edge of a big field of stumps.

"And what is this?" I asked.

"Just what you see," he answered hesitatingly. "The old man who always lived here until two years ago planted this to forest 40 years back—even fertilized the land, and kept all his stock out. People held picnics and reunions here—church services, sometimes, beside that grassy road.

"When the present owner bought the farm, he figured the trees would be just right for buzz wood, and he cut them all down and sold them by the cord. Sometimes I think there oughta be a law against a man deliberately destroyin' what he cannot replace and what some other fellow has spent a lifetime buildin' up."

We both looked far off across the stumps and were silent. After a while he turned to me with moist eyes and a baffled gesture. "I can never quite believe it happened."

LAN TO GET BAND UNIFORMS

adison Would Sell Old Ones To Purchase New Outfits.

An attempt to sell old Madison gh school band uniforms and rchase new ones in their place ll be made as the result of a cision arrived at by the Madi- n Township Music club, Olan Rue, school superintendent, an- unced today.

Discussion, he explained, led to e conclusion that previous plans add color to the present uni- rms would be impossible and at the only remedy seemed to to sell the present outfits to ne other school and purchase w ones.

Previous to the discussion the lowing new officers were elect- by the Music club, Earl Adams, president; Mrs. Charles Garion, vice president; Edna Dean, secretary and Earl Leininger, treasurer.

INSPECT HOMES

PERRYSVILLE—In accordance with the observance of Fire Prevention week, the students of Perrysville school and their parents inspected their homes for fire hazards and completed a Home Fire Prevention inspection blank which was published by the Fire Prevention department.

The first part of the inspection blank contained the questions for the child to answer in making the home inspection and the second part of the blank contained suggestions which explain the various dangers found in the inspection. These forms will be used to find the average fire hazards in this community and to remedy them.

SORORITY AIDS FRIENDLY HOUSE KINDERGARTEN

Mansfield Group Agrees To Supply Children With Vitamin Tablets.

Four and five year olds in the Friendly House kindergarten are going to receive cod liver oil and vitamin tablets this winter through the aid of the Zeta Rho chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority, Russell Gimbel, settlement director, announced today.

Reading in The News-Journal recently that such a plan had been forced from operation two years by a shortage of funds, members of the sorority's social service committee under the direction of Margaret Strickler, approached Gimbel with the suggestion that the sorority furnish the tablets this year.

Through this means, Gimbel said, more than 45 kindergarten tots will receive pills every morning.

"Just exactly how much sickness and suffering this will prevent we of course do not know," said Gimbel, "but it is certain that it will be a great deal."

"Some of the underprivileged children down here," he continued, "are going to be healthier because of this gift."

Arrangements have been made with a Mansfield physician to procure the tablets.

Each day the children will be given their tablets in class rooms. Vitamin and cod liver oil tablets will be alternated, Gimbel said, so that the tiny pupils will derive the benefits from both.

CIRCLES PLAN ANNUAL THANK OFFERING PARTY

Presbyterian Groups Meet Thursday to Complete Arrangements for Congregational Meeting at Church Parlors Next Week.

SEVERAL hundred women of the First Presbyterian church are planning for the annual Thank Offering dinner to be held in the church parlors next Thursday. Men of the church will be guests for the occasion at which time Dr. E. B. Mainzer and his wife, Dr. Lizabeth Mainzer, will be the guest speakers. They will present the program on "Palestine, Old and New," giving their personal impression of the historical city where they spent several years.

Plans were completed for this joint meeting at the respective circle sessions yesterday. Members of Circle One were entertained at the home of Mrs. W. T. Houston, Park avenue west, with Mrs. W. A. Hambelton and Mrs. Fred Herring assisting. Devotions were led by Mrs. W. R. King after which Henrietta Frank gave a most interesting talk on her work with the citizenship classes in Mansfield.

She has been doing this volunteer work here for the past 11 years, conducting classes twice a week. Following the program the group sewed for the Christmas charity work. Twenty-five members and two guests, Mrs. Alfred Dees and Mrs. Harvey Lanehart, guild president, were in attendance. Tea was served at the close of the meeting with fall flowers as decorations. The next meeting of Circle One will be held on Dec. 4 at the home of Mrs. W. R. King, 395 Edgewood road, for a Christmas party in the evening.

Circle Two met yesterday at the home of Mrs. M. M. Collins, 210 Mapledale avenue, with Mrs. Robert Black and Mrs. J. G. Routzon as associate hostesses. Mrs. Earl Paxton led the devotions, using as her theme, "Message of Friendship." Mrs. Bart Haley conducted the business session at which time reports were given. Thirty-five members heard "The History of the First Presbyterian Church," which was presented by Miss Frances Douglas. Her grandfather was the second Presbyterian minister in this city. Roll call was answered with interesting anecdotes on the church. A dessert-luncheon was served by the hostesses. The next meeting will be a joint meeting with Circle Four at the church for a covered dish luncheon on Dec. 4.

History of Thanksgiving.

Mrs. J. M. Hill, 240 Park avenue west, was hostess to members of Circle Three at her home Thursday. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock to 34 members by the hostesses, Mrs. F. A. Russell, Mrs. A. L. Allen, Mrs. W. H. Lake, Mrs. Hamilton Patton and Mrs. P. S. Corey. Mrs. John Angle gave the devotions and Miss Flora Lentzy presented a paper on "The History of Thanksgiving." The group sewed for charity during the afternoon. The next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 4 at the home of Mrs. B. L. Chase, 84 Carpenter road. Mrs. Angle and Mrs. C. B. Gibson will be the assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Walter Goodenough, Glen Beck Lane, was hostess to members of Circle Four Thursday afternoon at her home. She was assisted by Mrs. Sam Theaker, Mrs. A. H. White, Mrs J. L. Zimmerman and Mrs. J. R. Turner, who served a luncheon at 1 o'clock. Mrs. A. F. Remy led the devotions using as her theme, "Litany for Peace." Mrs. I. W. Basinger conducted the business session. The program was given by Mrs. B. L. Chase who reviewed the book, "My Sister and I." The group will meet with Circle Two at the church Dec 4 for a covered dish dinner. Officers of the circle will be hostesses.

Thirty-three members of Circle Five group met at the home of Mrs J. M. Johnston, Brae Burn road, Thursday for a dessert-luncheon. Associate hostesses were Mrs. Frank Marquis, Mrs. S. H. Campbell, Mrs W. C. Fort and Mrs L. W. Holdridge. The afternoon was spent in routine business and plans made for a Christmas party to be held Dec. 4 at the home of Mrs. Donald Given, Davis road. Dean of Fisk University Addresses State Meeting

Urging the continuation of the education of the colored people in the south, Dr. W. J. Faulkner, dean of Fisk university, spoke Thursday at the evening session of the 11th annual meeting of the Woman's Department of Missions of the Ohio Conference of Congregational Christian churches. He addressed more than 200 delegates to this two-day state meeting which is being held at the First Congregational church.

Dr. Faulkner, who has headed the school of higher education for colored people in Nashville, Tenn., for the past eight years, has spent many years as educator of his race. Previous to his work at Fisk he was active in Y. M. C. A. work through the south and spent several years in Savannah, Ga., as minister and teacher.

"The Congregational churches throughout the country have done much to develop the life of the colored people and in this time of uncertainty it is necessary that the mission work be continued," said Dr. Faulkner. He gave a comparison of the lives of the colored people 50 years ago with that of today.

The evening session was opened with a brief worship period in charge of Rev. Peter Young, pastor of the local church. Appropriate selections were sung by Mrs. Young.

Today's session opened at 9:30 a. m. with seminars led by several outstanding leaders in their fields. Dr. Faulkner was in charge of the forum on "In Race Relations" with Mrs. Paul Wilson, secretary of Home and State Missions of the Women's department, presiding. Other seminars were led by Miss Priscilla Chase of Cleveland, head of the religious education in Ohio; Miss Lucy Eldredge of Dayton, national secretary of young people's work and student life; Mrs. E. C. McClintock of Chicago, national secretary of women's work; and Mrs. Leonard Christian, missionary from China.

Mrs. E. L. Kirk spoke this morning on "Helping His Spirit Grow Stronger in the Philippines Through Our Thank Offering." Mrs. Christian, supervisor of kindergartens and evangelistic work in Foochow, China, talked on "The Amazing Chinese." Mrs. Edward Smith of Sandusky, conducted the worship service. Luncheon was served in the church at 12:30.

This afternoon the closing session will consist of election of state officers, installation, a worship period in charge of Mrs. Smith and a talk by Mrs. E. E. McClintock and Miss Eldredge. Mrs. Harold Morse, former state president, will conduct a quiz program.

Elect Officers At Meeting of Club Thursday

Miss Anna McVicar was elected president of the Thursday Mothers club at a meeting held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. A. Long, 294 Lind avenue. Other officers named were Mrs. C. E. Rowan, vice president; Mrs. A. H. Weikert, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Neff, treasurer.

Miss McVicar assisted the hostess when luncheon was served at 1 p. m. The members were seated at a long table centered with an arrangement of chrysanthemums. The afternoon was spent sewing for the Red Cross. The next meeting will be held Dec. 4 at the home of Mrs. Weikert, 195 Poplar street.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Nov. 8.

A RATHER conflicting state of affairs is probable on this day judging by the contradictory auguries among the influencing planetary aspects. While there may be some advancement or progress by the adoption of entirely new ideas, or new tactics brought to bear on old and difficult situations, yet there is so definite a threat of fraud, duplicity, deep laid schemes and subtle pitfalls it might be as well to postpone major activities. A similar state of duplicity pervades the intimate relations. Safeguard these from betrayal and suffering.

Those whose birthday it is may be beset by a year in which there may be several adverse situations to circumvent, probably by the adoption of drastic, revolutionary or summary measures or by the introduction of novel or progressive methods of meeting old and perverse conditions. These tactics may provoke reprisals in the way of fraud, treachery, sinister plots and intrigues which may undermine constructive efforts. Beware theft, imposters and unprincipled persons. Private associations may also be tinctured by kindred duplicities and frauds.

A child born on this day should have original talents and progressive ideas of public or community worth, but may be subject to fraud, treachery and betrayal in its business as well as intimate relations.

CROCHETED CLOTH PATTERN 2835

You'll love owning this exquisite cloth and hearing the many compliments you'll receive on your handiwork. Crochet it in large or small sizes in mercerized string or fine cotton. It works up quickly. Pattern 2835 contains instructions for making cloth in various sizes; illustrations of it and stiches; materials required; photograph of cloth.

Send ten cents in coin for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly Pattern Number, your Name and Address.

It's voted "most likely to succeed" by the sized four-to-twelve crowd! It's a jacket-'n-jumper ensemble by Marian Martin, Pattern 9900. It should be made of sturdy fabric—perhaps a herringbone tweed for the jacket and plain wool for the jumper. The jacket has a tailored, notched collar, and long sleeves trimmed with buttons like a boy's. Make the little beanie to match! Both pockets and short sleeves are optional on the jacket. The contrast jumper has a V-necked bib which continues as a panel in the skirt; back and front are cut just alike. This ensemble is so practical for an active young miss—let the Sew Chart help stitch it up!

Pattern 9900 may be ordered only in children's sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 8, jacket and cap, requires 1⅛ yards 54 inch fabric; skirt 1½ yards 54 inch contrast.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Size, Name, Address, and Style Number.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

THERE WAS something in Lillian's voice which convinced me that neither my father nor anyone else could keep her from going to the foreign restaurant, to which first Marion's code letter and then this bizarre telegram had summoned her.

True, her manner and the vanishing of the tremors which had beset her showed that she had been comforted by her husband's pronouncement that the covert threat of reprisal against Marion, should her mother fail to put in an appearance at the restaurant, was not genuine in its intention, but had been put in simply to frighten her.

But receiving easement of mind is something far different than being persuaded to change that same mind, and I, knowing Lillian better than anyone else save her husband, filed in the category of lost causes any attempt to keep her from the restaurant rendezvous.

Lillian's Challenge

Then, patently to dispel any illusions we might have as to her rigid determination, she lifted her head defiantly and repeated her challenge.

"You all heard me, didn't you?" she demanded. "I shall be there—at that restaurant — tomorrow night."

"We heard you, and we heed you," I retorted with a lightness in my voice which I was far from feeling, but which I employed purposely to bolster the defiant mood which was imbuing her with strength. "And I also shall be there."

"Didn't you hear that telegram?" she countered fiercely. "It said I must come alone."

Madge Going Too

"And so you shall," I told her. "But nobody, not even you, can prevent my having dinner at that restaurant tomorrow night. Not to protect you—don't think that for a moment. But my curiosity—and my appetite—have been whetted by the description of that chicken and sea-food dinner. I probably won't be able to get a table near you, but if you look around, you'll see me."

She looked at me steadily for a long second.

"You obstinate, darling fool!" she apostrophized. Then she turned to Miss Whitlock, with the winning graciousness which is one of her outstanding characteristics.

"I have made you a great deal of trouble, my dear," she said. "But I am going to be good now. I want to get as strong as I can by tomorrow night, so I am putting myself absolutely in your hands, and I shall obey your every mandate implicitly. That suits you, Harry? And you, Madge?"

Good News to Nurse

Her big husband stooped and kissed her.

"Suits me down to the ground," he said, and as I chimed in with a corroborating "Couldn't be better," the nurse went into action.

"That's the best news I've had all day," she said. "Now, if you'll just sit down in this big chair and talk to your husband until your breakfast is ready, he can help you to get ready to eat until I am satisfied you've had enough. And, I warn you, that's going to be a job."

"I'll do my best to satisfy you," Lillian said meekly.

"Then," Miss Whitlock retorted briskly, "if you'll excuse me, I'll get busy on breakfast for one, lunch, or what have you, for the rest, in the other room."

"May I help you?" I asked, rising.

"I hoped you'd volunteer," she said, and we went out together.

"What do you think of her?" I asked anxiously, after we had gotten the meal under way, and had a moment's respite for speech.

"That we're going to have no more throuble with her," she said promptly. "If I read her correctly, physical danger to herself or her loved ones will never get her down. It only inspires her to fight.

"It was that awful doubt of her daughter, which she would not voice to anyone, that prostrated her. When you removed that, you literally brought her back to life and sanity. There's only one thing that's worrying me now, yet something tells me that in all probability my anxiety is needless. But I must ask. Is Mrs. Underwood going to that restaurant by herself, with you at another table as her only protection?"

"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO GREAT EXTREMES

Among the styles of play of a suit contract, there are two absolute extremes. One of these consists of leading trumps until nobody has any more. The other is featured by the fact that the declarer never makes a trump lead throughout the entire hand, because he is trying to score his trumps separately by ruffing, never having two trumps on the same trick. It is rare that a traveling kibitzer has a chance to see both styles used on the same deal, which gets played in one suit by one pair, and in another suit by the opposing pair at a different table.

	♠ 9 7 6 5 ♥ 9 7 5 4 ♦ K J 8 7 ♣ J
♠ A Q J 8 ♥ A 8 3 2 ♦ None ♣ A Q 8 5 3	W. N. E. S.	♠ K 10 4 3 ♥ Q J 6 ♦ 9 4 3 ♣ 10 6 4
	♠ 2 ♥ K 10 ♦ A Q 10 6 5 2 ♣ K 9 7 2

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Pass	Pass	2 ♦
2 ♠	3 ♦	3 ♠	4 ♦
Dbl

Instead of doubling, one West player made a final bid of 4-Spades, and carried through his contract by most elementary play through pretty fair luck in finding no important pitfalls. North led the diamond K, which was ruffed with the spade 8. The spade A, Q and J came next, the latter overtaken by the K and the 10 settling North's last trump.

To make the needed ten tricks, West pressed his luck plenty. The heart Q went through when South played the 10, the 6 to the A dropped the K, the 3 was led to the J, the club 4 to the Q, and the A took the tenth trick, the last three tricks being given up after the contract was in.

When South played for 4-Diamonds doubled, the spade A won, the Q was ruffed by the diamond 2, the club 2 lost to the Q, the spade J was ruffed by the diamond 5, the club 7 by the diamond 7, the spade 9 by the diamond 6, the club 9 by the diamond 8, and the heart 4 led to the J, K and A. West fired the heart 2 to the Q, and for the first time East had a chance to interrupt the cross-ruff by leading a trump. His diamond 3 was taken by the K, the heart 7 ruffed by the diamond A, the club K by the diamond J and the heart 9 by the diamond Q. So with his side's ten trumps, South took nine tricks. He was down only one on his doubled contract, though he did not take a trick except with his side's trumps.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ A Q 9 6 ♥ K 10 ♦ 10 7 6 5 ♣ 9 6 4
♠ J 10 7 2 ♥ 8 6 5 4 ♦ A 9 8 4 ♣ 10	W. N. E. S.	♠ K 4 3 ♥ Q J 8 ♦ K J ♣ K 8 7 5 3
	♠ 8 5 ♥ A 9 7 2 ♦ Q 3 2 ♣ A Q J 2

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

If the defenders take the first two diamonds, the 9 is led to the 10, the club Q is finessed and the spade 8 is led, what card should West play in his effort to beat 3-No Trumps by South, and why?

SECRET UNION PACT APPROVED

UERMW Organizer Announces Contract With Farm Tools; Withholds Details.

Ratification of a secret union contract between the (CIO) United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, Local 756, and the management of Farm Tools, Inc., was announced today by Richard Niebur, Mansfield union field organizer.

Although claiming that the terms of the contract were very satisfactory to the union and "in many respects the best union contract in Mansfield from the union's point of view," Niebur said he could not divulge contract terms.

"The union," he said, "was able to secure better terms in the contract on the proviso that, we would not state for publication exactly what we had obtained," Niebur explained.

He did say, however, that a wage increase had been granted.

Agreed upon by Niebur and the Farm Tools management, the contract was unanimously ratified Wednesday night at a meeting of the union membership held in the Local 711 hall.

Previously, the management had agreed to recognize the union and negotiate for a contract when a card check showed that a majority of plant workers were union members.

WAR'S TOO BIG FOR ADVENTURE

Soldier of Fortune Quits the Business, Says Too Many Are In It.

(By United Press)

NEW ORLEANS—Guy Molony, a natural born warrin' man, has decided fighting's no fun when everybody's doing it.

Molony sailed from New Orleans to begin the season's work at his rice mill near Puerto Cortez, Honduras. About the only thing he used to sail for was trouble.

He started out at 16 on a mule transport for the Boer War—made it, too, and collected his first two wounds, one from a bullet and one from a bayonet.

Two years later he was riding in the Philippines with the U. S. cavalry and, returning from this enlistment, he got into a Nacaraguan revolution as a machine gunner.

Once when trapped by enemy gunners he adopted the policy of exposing himself frequently to tease them into firing sufficiently to get their gun too hot to work. The enemy gun started steaming and Molony and his cronies fixed the gunners.

Following that episode they had to beat their way back to civilization, eating green bananas and fish which they stunned by tossing improvised dynamite cartridges into streams.

Two weeks back from Nicaragua he set out for Honduras for another little revolution. But a confederate at their destination talked too much, with the result that Molony's lugger was greeted on arrival by a hail of cannon fire which almost sank it.

Later they tried again—Molony, Lee Christmas and Manuel Bonila, and this time they were successful. Molony managed the military-cadet school with the rank of general for a few years, but Bonila died in office and Christmas fell out of favor. So Molony came back to New Orleans and joined the Washington Artillery.

In 1931, when the Mexican border incidents of 1916 and his duty in the World war were just memorable incidents, Molony was beginning to acquire a peaceable status. It was at that time that a revolution broke out in San Pedro Sula coincidentally with Molony's presence there.

He was taking the unprecedented action of leaving the place, walking along a narrow gauge railroad, when he stumbled in the darkness and fell into a stream, thus ruining a good seersucker suit and working up a healthy anger. He got a machine gun and there he was fighting again.

With Lowell Yerex, now head of TACA airlines, operating from Tegucigalpa, they started machine-gunning revolutionists from a plane.

Right now the war business is too regimented for Molony's tastes and he's strictly tending to business.

Brownies Serve Mothers Tea at Woodland

It was tea time for a Brownie Girl Scout Pack of Woodland school and their mothers when these pictures were taken by The News-Journal photographer yesterday afternoon. Under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Dirlam and Mrs. M. K. Leggett the girls entertained their mothers with a program and tea after school hours at the building. The five smiling Brownies in the top picture are, from left to right, Marilyn Graham, Marilyn Wittmer, Martha Bell, Mary Ellen Ross and Judith MacLean. Mrs. Martin Goodman is shown being served by her daughter, Marjorie, in the picture below.

DISCUSSES NEW WAR WEAPONS

Westinghouse Expert Says New Equipment Extremely Effective For Defense.

New war weapons that would make Flash Gordon and Rube Goldberg blush are being produced by the nation's research scientists in the interest of national defense, Dr. L. W. Chubb, director of the Westinghouse research laboratories at East Pittsburgh, said in a talk before the Mansfield section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in the cafeteria at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant.

"Naturally I cannot disclose any details of the new weapons now under development, but let me assure you they are going to be extremely effective in the defense of our country and some of them are already proving of great value to the Allies," he said.

Tracing the history of armaments, Dr. Chubb said, "It would be safe to estimate that research in such fields as physics, chemistry, radio, metallurgy and mechanics has more than doubled in the past year.

"Organized industrial research, particularly, is now considered a national resource," he said. "I look upon it as a wealth-producing industry, the products of which—in the form of new knowledge—are the stepping stones of health, prosperity and defense."

Members of the Cleveland and Akron sections of the A. I. E. E. were guests of the Mansfield section at the annual combined meeting of the three groups.

CHAPTER XVI

Joy's mask, in addition to her theatrical face paint, had effectively concealed the one feature that might have been telltale if Ken Palmer had been a close observer—her eyes. Joy's were blue, even violet at times. Polly's were dark brown.

* * *

When Joy took off her mask, Polly saw instantly that Ken hadn't tumbled. He still thought himself with the other girl! Excitement was high everywhere now, girls shrieking and boys laughing, all making a roaring happy hullabaloo. But Polly's gaze was transfixed. She hung near a colonnade beside pots of artificial palms that were a part of the auditorium decorations, and stared at Joy and Ken. She was close enough even to hear their conversation.

"Ken, you're staring!" Joy beamed. "Don't you like me better with it off?"

He opened his mouth, but uttered no sound.

"Am I not lovely as an Indian girl, sir?"

"Yes!" The big fellow nodded. "You—you—Joy! I thought—I thought—you're Joy!"

His consternation was real. But Joy didn't know that. She smiled a little at him, teasingly. "Don't tell me you didn't know! Oh sure, you thought I really was Pocahontas or somebody! How ni-i-ice! Anyway it's gallant of you to say so, Kenny. Wait a sec—I can have the grease paint off in no time!"

She fled from him, and he stood there frowning during the five minutes she was absent. When she returned, most of the grease paint was gone at any rate, and so was the black Indian wig.

"Her blond beauty is gorgeous even with the Indian skirts!" Polly McMurray whispered to herself.

Newspaper photographers had come onto the floor, and of course they discovered Joy Boone, America's Girl-of-the-Year, she who already had brought a certain fame to Phoenix and its Frontier university. In a moment she and Ken Palmer were being spotlighted by the house electricians and flash photographed by the press. People gathered around by the hundreds, as usual where Joy Boone was.

Polly turned slowly away and found herself facing her brother again. Ward instantly saw the tears pooled in her eyes He put an arm around her, squeezed her hand. His muscles were tense.

"You're sold on Ken, aren't you, Sis? Don't answer. I know it's so." He spoke ever so tenderly, right next to her ear. "Well, I know just how you feel. Just . . . how . . . you . . . feel!"

She whispered back, observing the emotional stress within her brother. "Ward! . . . you can't."

He nodded. "Can't I, though? You think I'm made of stone myself?" The Buffalo Bill wig and face makeup were gone. It was Ward McMurray who faced her, lips strained, eyes revealing more than his words did. By degrees the truth dawned on Polly "We're in identically the same boat, I reckon, Sis. I had meant to keep my mouth shut, but seeing you—seeing you—well, damn it, I'm human! You'll never tell on me. I know you won't Sorry I mentioned it kid Forgive my part. I'll do what I can to help you out, though You know that!"

He turned away, going back to Sue Rivers but Polly's gaze followed him

In Polly now was the greatest heartbreak she had ever known. To have connived with Joy was one thing, because Joy might at least make Ken happy, Ken whom she herself loved But to have connived unwittingly against her brother, to know that he secretly loved Joy whom she had agreed to help win another man—that made it all a double burden!

"I can't stand it!" Polly whispered to herself now "Self-sacrifice may be ever so noble, but—there's such a thing as self loyalty, too! I've got to do something!"

"The way I see it," Ward McMurray was saying, with feeling "you and I have to keep our mouths shut, that's all. We are ranch people, Sis. Nothing soft about people raised in a ranch. We—we can take it."

Polly nodded. "Yes."

"I never would have figured this'd come up," Ward resumed, almost bitterly. "A thing like this, to me!"

"Why not? You're not different from other boys just because you're a cattleman. You have feelings. Same as I have."

"Guess so."

They were silent for several minutes. The hour was past midnight, but they had left the dance early. They had taken Sue Rivers home and themselves were riding back to their Paradise ranch in Ward's car. Memories of this night's Freshman masquerade were not the happy, hilarious ones youth has a right to expect, but were so poignant as to distress the brother and sister here.

Polly tried to divert him "The Fiesta del sol dance next month ought to be grand, too. It's to be in the same place."

He didn't respond. "Tell you what," said he, presently, "tomorrow I'll look up this Ken Palmer and set him straight, Sis. He can be made to see you for what you are, and then—"

"No! That's ridiculous, Ward."

"The hell it is! Excuse me. I mean—why is it?" He spoke vehemently. "Are you my little sis, or aren't you? My business is to look after what's mine. If anything got to upsetting my herd of fine horses, do you think I'd just twiddle my thumbs about it? Now I can tell ken that—"

"You'll do nothing of the sort. Only a moment ago you yourself said that we must keep our mouths shut That ranch folks can take it!"

"But—"

"All right We can take, it then. Unless—you wish me to help you get Joy. Do you? It isn't like you to sit down and do nothing when there's something you want!"

He grimaced at her, in mild exasperation. "Nuts to that, Sis! If you're sold on Ken—"

"It works both ways, Ward."

He shut up then. For another mile. Each was thinking glumly, staring through the windshield at cactus and palo verde and greasewood bathed in the car lights. They saw the odd little kangaroo night rats jumping beside the road. Once an owl glared at them, and a gorgeously marked skunk ambled off leaving no scent. But the two youths were unresponsive to Nature's outdoor lures tonight.

"It's all right to go after the man you want, Sis," Ward said, after the interval of silence. "Girls are supposed to, uh, to compete with one another in their romancing and all. All you got to do is keep it clean, see? I read once where—"

"No. You won't fight for Joy."

"That's different, confound it! Can't you see how it is? I admit I fell for Joy, but if I elbowed in with fists doubled I'd just mess up the works. I'm a roughneck cowpuncher and she's a diamond on blue velvet! Why hell's potatoes, Sis, I'm not one to—to—cheapen it! Know what I mean? She's beautiful! Didn't you see her tonight? Haven't you see the wonder in her eyes? See the way she moves, and talks; 'and thinks too, so help me! That's what I like about her. Joy's not just a shapely little heifer with good promise for calving time. She's show stock! Right on through to the sweepstakes. A man'd nigh about work himself crazy just doing for a girl like her. She—"

"Why—War-r-rd!" Polly was impressed. She had never heard her brother talk so. There was no levity in his speech, for all its picturesque quality. Something had impelled the young man to open up his heart.

"That's a fact, Polly, he would. Now you say I won't fight for Joy. Nope, I won't. The situation is different, see? She has already committed herself, in private and openly. She's gone on a deer hunt," Joy included. "He told you?"

"Ward nodded. "That sounds good."

"Yes. I'll think up a plan, Ward. If you're up first in the morning tell Pancho to saddle my horse. I'll want to ride."

"Okay."

"Remember—no talk tonight. Ken hasn't brought Joy back out yet anyway, so you just go on to bed."

* * *

From the time he had picked up his date at the Paradise Ranch this evening, big Ken Palmer had been a young man technically sitting on pins.

He had never been to a dance before, save to peak in.

He had never before attended any sort of masquerade.

He had never attended any other kind of social function where so many people were enjoying themselves at one time.

The "Indian girl" at his side during the ride in somehow had awed him. He tried to say a few casual things at first, but when she had kept up the act of just grunting or giggling he had been amused, and so had cast himself more deeply into his role as Coronado the conquistador. He, an expert historian, had thought it particularly apt that Polly chose an Indian costume. Coronado 400 years ago had dealt constantly with the Arizona Indians. Only—Coronado this night didn't know that the redskin maiden beside him wasn't really Polly McMurray at all.

Except for his self-consciousness he probably would have discovered Joy Boone's presence beside him. But a heavy black wig, a half dozen petticoats, a huge dress, a blanket, greasepaint and a mask, all served to hide her. He might even have called her Polly except that he began calling her, poetically, "Estrellita." He saw that she was little and dainty, and colorful, like a "Little Star" indeed. The name pleased him and it pleased Joy.

But when that dramatic moment came in the vast Civic auditorium and the people all unmasked, he could only point a finger at Joy Boone and murmur in consternation. Other dance couples, newspaper reporters and photographers, all manner of merry makers had then engulfed them. Excitement had seized Ken. Excitement as well as confusion.

He had been photographed with her in a dozen poses, smiling when ordered to. He had shaken hands with countless folk. He had been slapped on the back. He had been kissed by four or five impulsive girls and seen Joy cling possessively to him, while laughter and music and noise seemed to permeate everything.

On the way back to Paradise Ranch where Joy was a guest for the night, he thought once to ask her about the substitution of Joy for Polly. But—confusion by now had verily triumphed in him! In Kenyon Thomas Palmer, jr., son of the University president, whose studious nature had been jarred quite out of its routine this night. He actually wasn't quite sure what to say, here at 2:30 a. m.

So he just drove his jalopy and listened or answered in vague monosyllables while Joy talked incessantly and snuggled close to him. Polly McMurray came to meet them on the front porch. There were little speeches of thanks, little courtesies said, while Ken frowned in bewilderment at Polly, his eyes momentarily holding hers.

Then he drove away wondering—as countless other men have wondered since Time began—at the enchantment that is Woman, and at the baffling mystery of her ways.

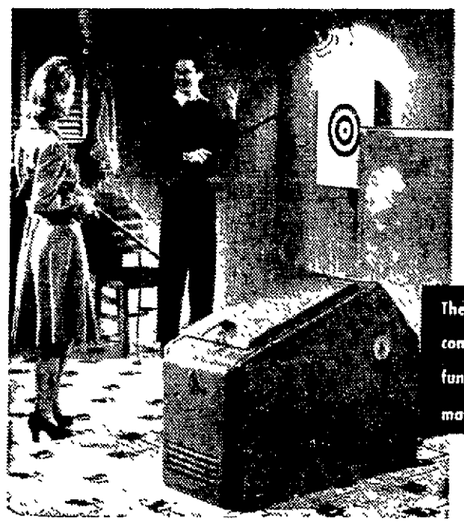
. . . and at the same time SAVE WORK, PROTECT HEALTH, ENJOY MORE COMFORT

A recent survey by a national research organization that interviewed some 590 users of automatic coal stokers found that these users of automatic heat were enjoying an average saving of 43 per cent in fuel costs over previous heating methods! It has further been proved that modern, automatic winter air conditioning systems using gas or oil for fuel are also making almost unbelievably large savings over old-fashioned heating methods in homes. That is why, in fuel savings alone, the modern, automatic winter air conditioning system will soon pay for itself. But there are other advantages of equal importance. You save on cleaning bills, because the properly, evenly heated air is cleansed of its impurities, leaving practically no dirt or dust to settle on walls, curtains, furniture, or rugs. Further, filtering the air and properly humidifying it protects health because germs and bacteria are removed from the air in the rooms, and the moisture protects the delicate membranes of nose and throat. Many of your friends and neighbors are going to enjoy the benefits of modern, automatic home heating this winter. Why don't you? Learn NOW how economically you can bring your heating system up to date!



The basement equipped with a modern, automatic winter air conditioning system is clean, and provides ample space for fun and frolic as this photograph shows. In this case an automatic coal stoker provides even heat without fuss or bother.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — There were three things that Solomon could not understand and three million times three million that I can't.

Among these are the arguments of some of my columnist confreres that it was lack of peace-time access to the world's raw materials that caused the war, that post-war peace depends on giving all nations equal access to such raw materials and that, among many other things that we must do to reconstruct the world, after we have financed the winning of the war, is to insure this universal access of all nations to raw material.

Johnson

When in peace time was there any lack of access, especially to such strategic raw materials as copper, rubber, steel and oil? It is true that tariff systems, walling off world commerce into water-tight trade compartments, had much to do with the dislocation of free trade intercourse. But these were restrictions on imports—not on exports—and we were one of the greatest offenders of the lot.

It is true also that in some important commodities—at one time or another, rubber, tin and farm products—attempts were made, either nationally or internationally, to restrict production. This was done in every case to maintain high prices, and in farm products, again we were the worst offenders and we did it by governmental action.

In other products, about which the greatest howl now rises—tin, rubber, copper and some chemicals—it was done by private individuals or corporations operating through cartels and other trade agreements.

In many cases these capitalists were British, Dutch, American, French and even German. Generally speaking, they held up everybody, their own nationals as well as the rest of the world. They were just trying to keep prices up against seasonal and other gluts. Frequently their efforts did their own countries more harm than good.

Regardless of this, just how we are going to move in at the conclusion of this war, assuming complete victory, and restrain commercial individual practices as old as Tyre and Sidon is something I would like to have explained.

The truth of the matter is that the fight for access to raw materials is not for the purposes of peace but for those of war. Nations, including Germany, have had free peace-time access to the vast general excess of raw materials as long as they had the money to pay for it.

They always will have this access because the raw material nations produce to sell and not to hoard. Customers are not turned away because of the shape of their heads.

But, in war, all this changes. Raw material is war material. The avowed object of Britain and of us who echo her policy is to dominate the seas against any other combination of powers whatever. That has and could have only one object. It is to withhold strategic war materials from any potential enemy. Would we change that purpose?

This stuff about assuring equal access to all nations to the world's supplies of raw materials seems to be more ill-informed or actually hypocritical war-sloganeering of the present unfortunate epoch.

We are going into this war for two other purposes and only two: (1) To keep any other nations from imposing their ideas and systems upon the world—including us; (2) to impose our own instead.

Browne, Bioff Face 30 Year Prison Term

FOUND GUILTY ON 3 COUNTS OF EXTORTION

Judge Brands Union Leaders 'Chicago Hoodlums'; Jury Out Two Hours.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—George E. Browne and William Bioff, convicted of using their powerful labor union positions to shake down four motion picture companies for $550,000, faced 30 years in prison and fines of $30,000 each today.

A federal jury deliberated an hour and 58 minutes last night and found them guilty of three counts of violating the anti-racketeering law. Federal Judge John C. Knox, praising the jury for having found what U. S. Attorney Matthias F. Correa called, "these Chicago hoodlums," guilty, revoked their bonds, $50,000 each, and ordered them to jail to await sentencing Wednesday.

If Judge Knox gives them the maximum penalty—and he indicates no sympathy for them—they would be sent to prison for 30 years each and fined $30,000 apiece.

Browne is president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL) and until a few weeks ago, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor. Bioff, former panderer in Chicago, is west coast representative of the IATSE.

They were brought to trial Oct. 8 for extorting, according to the indictments, $550,000 from Loew's, Inc.; Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.; Paramount Pictures and Twentieth Century-Fox

But Bioff, the only defendant to testify, admitted collecting "over a million dollars," and collateral issues, not mentioned in the indictment but introduced to show that Browne was involved with Bioff, accounted for $200,000 more.

In his summation, United States Attorney Matthias F. Correa told the jury:

"If these racketeers, these Chicago hoodlums, can get to a place where they can cast their shadows over the lives of 125,000 American workers (the membership of the IATSE) and their families, it constitutes, in my mind, gentlemen, a national scandal. I'm quite certain your verdict will let fresh air into a lot of homes in this country. Certainly that is something that is eminently desirable.

"Now, I don't believe that there is a firmer believer in labor unions than myself. But all labor will doubtless be glad to have the unions purged of such individuals as these. If union labor is to endure, it must rid itself of men who stand ready to sell out labor when it suits their purposes."

CALLS FOR CUT IN NON-DEFENSE EXPENDITURES

Ohio C. of C. Hears Defense To Cost Every Worker $500 Annually For 4 Years.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The Ohio Chamber of Commerce started the ball rolling today in its campaign against non-defense expenditures by the federal government.

Representatives of central Ohio and civic organizations, assembled here to discuss the movement, were told last night there is a need for drastic curtailment of expenditures in view of a prospective national debt exceeding a hundred billion dollars at the end of the present four-year defense program.

Dr. Arch D. Schultz, director of the chamber's research department, asserted the nation's defense outlay would cost each gainfully employed person more than $500 annually for four years.

"Strictest economy in public expenditures must be practiced if the American form of government and the nation's economy are not to be submerged in a tax blackout," he declared.

Dr Schultz suggested these means to effect a successful drive against non-defense spending:

1. Demand scientific reduction in expenditures so that the burden of sacrifices may rest upon the federal government as well as upon local officials and citizens;

2. Demand that congress reduce subsidy appropriations and departmental requests;

3. Assure congress that no complaint will be made in reducing subsidies

Paul J Daugherty, director of the chamber's social security department, warned that expansion of the federal society security system, as mentioned by Washington officials, would increase the present tax on Ohio wage earners by approximately $100,000,000 annually.

Don't be surprised if you find yourself taking a bath in a dry tub. Fred Haag, city plumbing inspector, told council that the attachment by firemen of a booster pump on any of the city's small-gauge water pipes might easily pump the water out of the bathtubs in the vicinity. He explained that the pump would pull so heavily against the small lines that water might be drawn backward through the pipes if the faucets were left open.

When the Brownie Pack of Woodland school found they were without authentic "props" for the playlet they were presenting for their mothers at the school yesterday afternoon they resorted to make-shift. The girls devised a davenport out of three chairs and a blanket, used the piano for a stage curtain and created other furnishings in a similar manner. Mrs. M. K. Leggett, assistant leader, played "heavy" for the girls by acting as "curtain puller."

A roof leak in the board of education room in the new John Simpson Junior high school building has troubled school officials and architects for several months, but Architect Lester Redding was more worried yesterday about the "disappearance" of Board Clerk John H. Eisaman who went in search of the roof leak. Volunteering his services, Eisaman climbed into the dark upper reaches of the building, saying he would be down shortly. After he was gone for a half hour and nothing was heard from him, Redding began to worry, fearing that maybe Eisaman was lost. Nearly an hour after he left, the missing clerk returned, covered with cobwebs and dust. But he found the leak.

Playing the pinball machines is one sport a great number of people enjoy, but few of them enjoy it in their home, yet that's the case with a certain rather prominent person in town, whose fascination for pinball devices would cost him a young fortune if he did not keep a machine for his private enjoyment in his bedroom.

POISON KILLS 7 ELEPHANTS

Circus Officials Are Puzzled About Where Pachyderms Contacted Arsenic.

(By International News Service)

ATLANTA, Ga.—The deaths of seven elephants of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus within 24 hours remained a mystery today following discovery that all of the elephants apparently died of arsenic poisoning.

Disclosures that the pachyderms had swallowed "large amounts" of arsenic was made by Dr. T. B. Glower, chief veterinarian for the state of Georgia, but just where the animals came in contact with the poison puzzled circus officials.

One theory advanced was that the elephants were poisoned accidentally in Charlotte, N. C, last previous stop of the circus, when they were allowed to graze on grounds formerly occupied by a chemical works

Eight other elephants in the Ringling herd of about 70 were described as seriously ill today. A strange fact was that each of the animals fatally stricken was the "lead" elephant of an act.

Loss to the circus was placed between $70,000 and $100,000, but of greater importance from the standpoint of the circus was the fact that replacing the animals would be extremely difficult because of the war.

Two circus employes, Milt Taylor, 47, a clown, and Ernest Lindemood, an advance agent, also died within the 24-hour span, but circus spokesmen said their deaths were a coincidence not related to the deaths of the elephants.

AMERICAN 'MR. CHIPS' GETS LAST WISH, BURIED AT SCHOOL

(By Associated Press)

LANCASTER—The picturesque Hocking hills, radiant in fall foliage, today cradled the body of an obscure octogenarian—Stephan A. Gortner, whose heirs are "anyone's children who needed help."

Death claimed the aged bachelor in a Mt. Carmel hospital room at Columbus Monday—his 82nd birthday.

He expressed a last wish that he might be buried in the private cemetery of the Lancaster Boys' Industrial school, where for nearly 30 years he taught industrial arts to wayward youths.

State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood readily granted the request.

Gortner, born on a Muskingum county farm, was the son of a Methodist minister. As a young man he operated a printing shop in New York City; he went to New Mexico as an expert photographer; joined the staff of the Barry school at Rome, Ga., devoted to the education of mountaineers' sons, and, briefly, published the Amanda, O., Press.

At the industrial school Gortner dedicated himself to the task of teaching recalcitrant hands constructive habit s—woodwork, weaving, basketwork. He could play almost any instrument, friends said, and encouraged his charges to study music.

He also became a minister, licensed to preach in the Methodist Church South, and sometimes served as industrial school chaplain

The teacher's children "were anyone's children who needed help," said his brother, W. N Gortner of Columbus. Associates sometimes mentioned him as a "sort of American Mr. Chips"

Services for Gortner were conducted yesterday in the school chapel. The Protestant, Catholic and Jewish chaplains joined in final tribute as the institution's choir sang his requiem in the presence of a thousand young inmates.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Pull the Star Lever.

IF YOU'VE ever paid a night club cover charge, if you've paid $4.40 to see a musical, if you've grabbed a ticket from the shill in front of a dance hall, if you're a Thursday night regular at Lindy's, if Broadway Rose has called you sweetheart—then, brother, you're registered automatically You're eligible to vote in the Broadway elections of 1941!

Kilgallen

Broadway, a delightful unincorporated village, is built like a fireman's scaling ladder, its rubbery length as twisted as a mobster's moral code. Its civic officers have mighty titles and lowely titles and titles not usually found on a political ticket—but enough titles to make the election fruit for heated debate. And there are only two tickets—the Reform ticket, and the Star ticket.

This newspaper has been kind enough to donate this space to the Star ticket, which is running on a strict platform of Fun and Frolic. For news of the Reform ticket, turn to page 103.

Here's the Star ticket:

FOR PRESIDENT: George M. Cohan! He gave us laughs that were scrubbed and clean, but still funny. He came up the hard way. He writes, he dances, he sings, he performs in portraits of tenderness. The Reformers say that he has always been Mr. Broadway and that is power enough. We say Mr. Broadway is a title with glory only, and now is the time to give him more than glory. Mr. Broadway for president!

FOR VICE PRESIDENT: John Broderick! He drinketh not, nor does he smoke. His fists are like the anvil of the village blacksmith. He cannot hear the crinkle of dollar bills because his ear on that side is deaf. Pull the Star lever for Johnny Broderick—his heart is shaped like a sheriff's star!

FOR SECRETARY. Irving Berlin! Irving wrote the songs of the nation—all in black ink—and he made most of them love songs. We rest our case for him on that note. For assistant secretaries The Andrews Sisters, in charge of Harmony; Tito Guizar in charge of Latin-American good will, Harry Richman, in charge of Miami, Bing Crosby, expert on Hollywood.

* * *

FOR TREASURER· Jock Whitney! He wears the dollar sign neatly and no Broadway grouser can complain of the way he's dispersed the long green. His assistants on the same platform will gladly let their press clippings speak for them—Alexis Thompson, Horace Schmidlapp, Huntington Hartford, 3rd and Alfred Bloomingdale

* * *

FOR DRAMA DIRECTOR: William "Wild Bill" Saroyan, living example of the old adage which holds that you can't keep a good man down even if he's bad—so long as he's interesting. And you know that when Bill's handling the typewriter, there's never a dull moment. More than that, he's the original be-satisfied-or-your-money-back man!

* * *

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE· Victor Moore! This job needs a fellow with an honest face, and he's got it It needs charm and tact, and bless his heart, he's got them, too. It needs a lad who can say almost anything and get by with it—and he can. He's cast in the perfect mold and he's cute, too Vote for Victor Moore!

And don't forget his Ambassadors. Arthur Treacher to England, Xavier Cugat, to Mexico, Mischa Auer to Russia, Jean Sablin to France. And to China—who but George Jean Nathan?

Following the services here, the body will be removed to the home of her sister, Mrs. J. C. Shemer in Upper Sandusky, where additional services will be held at 2 p. m., tomorrow, with Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Mansfield officiating.

Burial will be in the Old Mission cemetery, Upper Sandusky.

FOUND DEAD AT HOME IN GALION

William Connors, 54, Died of Heart Attack, Coroner Says.

GALION — Funeral arrangements were being completed today for William Connors, 54, who was found dead in his home here yesterday afternoon.

The body was found by a neighbor, Lester Spruck, who had gone to the residence and was unable to get any response. Spruck called authorities after he looked through a window and saw Connor's body on the floor.

Crawford County Coroner O. R Kackley, said the man had been dead about three hours. He suffered a heart attack. The body was removed to Whitridge mortuary.

Surviving are a sister, Mary Connors, Galion, and four brothers, John, Henry and George, all of Galion, and Francis of Youngstown.

WEEK LEFT

Nov. 15 Deadline For Mediation Plan In Mine Dispute.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt's 11-man defense mediation board today had another week to reach a recommendation for settlement of the labor dispute between United Mine Workers chieftain John L Lewis and steel companies owning coal mines

Lewis set a Nov. 15 deadline for board action after he called off a strike of 53,00 miners on the appeal of the president. The board was given the case, involving the sole issue of a "union shop," under a peace plan worked out by the president.

Board chairman William H Davis has been driving for a recommendation by the end of this week.

Beer Glass Brings Rescue of Five Airmen From Sea

LONDON —(AP)— A pint of beer drawn at just the right moment won a coast-guard inspector's thanks today for the keeper of "The Crown" in the Norfolk seaside village of Sheringham.

Landlord Charley Holsey held the foaming glass up for a critical look against the light. As he raised his eyes he saw a speck on the sea.

Lifeguards, called as a result of his providential glance, rescued five exhausted Polish airmen from a liferaft.

G. B. HAWS DIES AT PERRYSVILLE

CHAPTER XVI

Joy's mask, in addition to her theatrical face paint, had effectively concealed the one feature that might have been telltale if Ken Palmer had been a close observer—her eyes. Joy's were blue, even violet at times. Polly's were dark brown.

* * *

When Joy took off her mask, Polly saw instantly that Ken hadn't tumbled. He still thought himself with the other girl! Excitement was high everywhere now, girls shrieking and boys laughing, all making a roaring happy hullabaloo. But Polly's gaze was transfixed. She hung near a colonnade beside pots of artificial palms that were a part of the auditorium decorations, and stared at Joy and Ken. She was close enough even to hear their conversation.

"Ken, you're staring!" Joy beamed. "Don't you like me better with it off?"

He opened his mouth, but uttered no sound.

"Am I not lovely as an Indian girl, sir?"

"Yes!" The big fellow nodded. "You — you — Joy! I thought—I thought—you're Joy!"

His consternation was real. But Joy didn't know that. She smiled a little at him, teasingly. "Don't tell me you didn't know! Oh sure, you thought I really was Pocahontas or somebody! How ni-i-ice! Anyway it's gallant of you to say so, Kenny. Wait a sec — I can have the grease paint off in no time!"

She fled from him, and he stood there frowning during the five minutes she was absent. When she returned, most of the grease paint was gone at any rate, and so was the black Indian wig.

"Her blond beauty is gorgeous even with the Indian skirts!" Polly McMurray whispered to herself.

Newspaper photographers had come onto the floor, and of course they discovered Joy Boone, America's Girl-of-the-Year, she who already had brought a certain fame to Phoenix and its Frontier university. In a moment she and Ken Palmer were being spotlighted by the house electricians and flash photographed by the press. People gathered around by the hundreds, as usual where Joy Boone was.

Polly turned slowly away and found herself facing her brother again. Ward instantly saw the tears pooled in her eyes. He put an arm around her, squeezed her hand. His muscles were tense.

"You're sold on Ken, aren't you, Sis? Don't answer. I know it's so." He spoke ever so tenderly, right next to her ear. "Well, I know just how you feel. Just . . . how . . . you . . . feel!"

She whispered back, observing the emotional stress within her brother. "Ward! . . . you can't."

He nodded. "Can't I, though? You think I'm made of stone myself?" The Buffalo Bill wig and face makeup were gone. It was Ward McMurray who faced her, lips strained, eyes revealing more than his words did. By degrees the truth dawned on Polly. "We're in identically the same boat, I reckon, Sis. I had meant to keep my mouth shut, but seeing you—seeing you—well, damn it, I'm human! You'll never tell on me. I know you won't. Sorry I mentioned it, kid. Forgive my part. I'll do what I can to help you out, though. You know that!"

He turned away, going back to Sue Rivers, but Polly's gaze followed him.

In Polly now was the greatest heartbreak she had ever known. To have connived with Joy was one thing, because Joy might at least make Ken happy, Ken whom she herself loved. But to have connived unwittingly against her brother, to know that he secretly loved Joy whom she had agreed to help win another man—that made it all a double burden!

"I can't stand it!" Polly whispered to herself now. "Self-sacrifice may be ever so noble, but—there's such a thing as self loyalty, too! I've got to do something!"

"The way I see it," Ward McMurray was saying, with feeling, "you and I have to keep our mouths shut, that's all. We are ranch people, Sis. Nothing soft about people raised in a ranch. We—we can take it."

Polly nodded. "Yes."

"I never would have figured this'd come up," Ward resumed, almost bitterly. "A thing like this, to me!"

"Why not? You're not different from other boys just because you're a cattleman. You have feelings. Same as I have."

"Guess so."

They were silent for several minutes. The hour was past midnight, but they had left the dance early. They had taken Sue Rivers home and themselves were riding back to their Paradise ranch in Ward's car. Memories of this night's Freshman masquerade were not the happy, hilarious ones youth has a right to expect, but were so poignant as to distress the brother and sister here.

Polly tried to divert him. "The Fiesta del sol dance next month ought to be grand, too. It's to be in the same place."

He didn't respond. "Tell you what," said he, presently, "tomorrow I'll look up this Ken Palmer and set him straight, Sis. He can be made to see you for what you are, and then—"

"No! That's ridiculous, Ward."

"The hell it is! Excuse me, I mean—why is it?" He spoke vehemently. "Are you my little sis, or aren't you? My business is to look after what's mine. If anything got to upsetting my herd of fine horses, do you think I'd just twiddle my thumbs about it? Now I can tell ken that—"

"You'll do nothing of the sort. Only a moment ago you yourself said that we must keep our mouths shut. That ranch folks can take it!"

"But—"

"All right. We can take, it then. Unless—you wish me to help you get Joy. Do you? It isn't like you to sit down and do nothing when there's something you want!"

He grimaced at her, in mild exasperation. "Nuts to that, Sis! If you're sold on Ken—"

"It works both ways, Ward."

He shut up then. For another mile. Each was thinking glumly, staring through the windshield at cactus and palo verde and greasewood bathed in the car lights. They saw the odd little kangaroo night rats jumping beside the road. Once an owl glared at them, and a gorgeously marked skunk ambled off leaving no scent. But the two youths were unresponsive to Nature's outdoor lures tonight.

"It's all right to go after the man you want, Sis," Ward said, after the interval of silence. "Girls are supposed to, uh, to compete with one another in their romancing and all. All you got to do is keep it clean, see? I read once where—"

"No. You won't fight for Joy."

"That's different, confound it! Can't you see how it is? I admit I fell for Joy, but if I elbowed in with fists doubled I'd just mess up the works. I'm a roughneck cowpuncher and she's a diamond on blue velvet! Why hell's potatoes, Sis, I'm not one to—to—cheapen it! Know what I mean? She's beautiful! Didn't you see her tonight? Haven't you see the wonder in her eyes? See the way she moves, and talks; 'and thinks too, so help me! That's what I like about her. Joy's not just a shapely little heifer with good promise for calving time. She's show stock! Right on through to the sweepstakes. A man'd nigh about work himself crazy just doing for a girl like her. She—"

"Why—War-r-rd!" Polly was impressed. She had never heard her brother talk so. There was no levity in his speech, for all its picturesque quality. Something had impelled the young man to open up his heart.

"That's a fact, Polly, he would. Now you say I won't fight for Joy. Nope, I won't. The situation is different, see? She has already committed herself, in private and openly. She's gone on a deer hunt," Joy included. "He told you?"

"Ward nodded. "That sounds good."

"Yes. I'll think up a plan, Ward. If you're up first in the morning tell Pancho to saddle my horse. I'll want to ride."

"Okay."

"Remember — no talk tonight. Ken hasn't brought Joy back out yet anyway, so you just go on to bed."

* * *

From the time he had picked up his date at the Paradise Ranch this evening, big Ken Palmer had been a young man technically sitting on pins.

He had never been to a dance before, save to peak in.

He had never before attended any sort of masquerade.

He had never attended any other kind of social function where so many people were enjoying themselves at one time.

The "Indian girl" at his side during the ride in somehow had awed him. He tried to say a few casual things at first, but when she had kept up the act of just grunting or giggling he had been amused, and so had cast himself more deeply into his role as Coronado the conquistador. He, an expert historian, had thought it particularly apt that Polly chose an Indian costume. Coronado 400 years ago had dealt constantly with the Arizona Indians. Only—Coronado this night didn't know that the redskin maiden beside him wasn't really Polly McMurray at all.

Except for his self-consciousness he probably would have discovered Joy Boone's presence beside him. But a heavy black wig, a half dozen petticoats, a huge dress, a blanket, greasepaint and a mask, all served to hide her. He might even have called her Polly except that he began calling her, poetically, "Estrellita." He saw that she was little and dainty, and colorful, like a "Little Star" indeed. The name pleased him and it pleased Joy.

But when that dramatic moment came in the vast Civic auditorium and the people all unmasked, he could only point a finger at Joy Boone and murmur in consternation. Other dance couples, newspaper reporters and photographers, all manner of merry makers had then engulfed them. Excitement had seized Ken. Excitement as well as confusion.

He had been photographed with her in a dozen poses, smiling when ordered to. He had shaken hands with countless folk. He had been slapped on the back. He had been kissed by four or five impulsive girls and seen Joy cling possessively to him, while laughter and music and noise seemed to permeate everything.

On the way back to Paradise Ranch where Joy was a guest for the night, he thought once to ask her about the substitution of Joy for Polly. But—confusion by now had verily triumphed in him! In Kenyon Thomas Palmer, jr., son of the University president, whose studious nature had been jarred quite out of its routine this night. He actually wasn't quite sure what to say, here at 2:30 a. m.

So he just drove his jalopy and listened or answered in vague monosyllabics while Joy talked incessantly and snuggled close to him. Polly McMurray came to meet them on the front porch. There were little speeches of thanks, little courtesies said, while Ken frowned in bewilderment at Polly, his eyes momentarily holding hers.

Then he drove away wondering—as countless other men have wondered since Time began—at the enchantment that is Woman, and at the baffling mystery of her ways.

A recent survey by a national research organization that interviewed some 590 users of automatic coal stokers found that these users of automatic heat were enjoying an average saving of 43 per cent in fuel costs over previous heating methods! It has further been proved that modern, automatic winter air conditioning systems using gas or oil for fuel are also making almost unbelievably large savings over old-fashioned heating methods in homes. That is why, in fuel savings alone, the modern, automatic winter air conditioning system will soon pay for itself. But there are other advantages of equal importance. You save on cleaning bills, because the properly, evenly heated air is cleansed of its impurities, leaving practically no dirt or dust to settle on walls, curtains, furniture, or rugs. Further, filtering the air and properly humidifying it protects health because germs and bacteria are removed from the air in the rooms, and the moisture protects the delicate membranes of nose and throat. Many of your friends and neighbors are going to enjoy the benefits of modern, automatic home heating this winter. Why don't you? Learn NOW how economically you can bring your heating system up to date!

The basement equipped with a modern, automatic winter air conditioning system is clean, and provides ample space for fun and frolic as this photograph shows. In this case an automatic coal stoker provides even heat without fuss or bother.

Browne, Bioff Face 30 Year Prison Term

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — There were three thinugs that Solomon could not understand and three million times three million that I can't.

Among these are the arguments of some of my columnist confreres that it was lack of peace-time access to the world's raw materials that caused the war, that post-war peace depends on giving all nations equal access to such raw materials and that, among many other things that we must do to reconstruct the world, after we have financed the winning of the war, is to insure this universal access of all nations to raw material.

Johnson

When in peace time was there any lack of access, especially to such strategic raw materials as copper, rubber, steel and oil? It is true that tariff systems, walling off world commerce into water-tight trade compartments, had much to do with the dislocation of free trade intercourse. But these were restrictions on imports—not on exports—and we were one of the greatest offenders of the lot.

It is true also that in some important commodities—at one time or another, rubber, tin and farm products—attempts were made, either nationally or internationally, to restrict production. This was done in every case to maintain high prices, and in farm products, again we were the worst offenders and we did it by governmental action.

In other products, about which the greatest howl now rises—tin, rubber, copper and some chemicals—it was done by private individuals or corporations operating through cartels and other trade agreements.

In many cases these capitalists were British, Dutch, American, French and even German. Generally speaking, they held up everybody, their own nationals as well as the rest of the world. They were just trying to keep prices up against seasonal and other gluts. Frequently their efforts did their own countries more harm than good.

Regardless of this, just how we are going to move in at the conclusion of this war, assuming complete victory, and restrain commercial individual practices as old as Tyre and Sidon is something I would like to have explained.

The truth of the matter is that the fight for access to raw materials is not for the purposes of peace but for those of war. Nations, including Germany, have had free peace-time access to the vast general excess of raw materials as long as they had the money to pay for it.

They always will have this access because the raw material nations produce to sell and not to hoard. Customers are not turned away because of the shape of their heads.

But, in war, all this changes. Raw material is war material. The avowed object of Britain and of us who echo her policy is to dominate the seas against any other combination of powers whatever. That has and could have only one object. It is to withhold strategic war materials from any potential enemy. Would we change that purpose?

This stuff about assuring equal access to all nations to the world's supplies of raw materials seems to be more ill-informed or actually hypocritcal war-sloganeering of the present unfortunate epoch.

We are going into this war for two other purposes and only two: (1) To keep any other nations from imposing their ideas and systems upon the world—including us: (2) to impose our own instead.

CALLS FOR CUT IN NON-DEFENSE EXPENDITURES

Ohio C. of C. Hears Defense To Cost Every Worker $500 Annually For 4 Years.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The Ohio Chamber of Commerce started the ball rolling today in its campaign against non-defense expenditures by the federal government.

Representatives of central Ohio and civic organizations, assembled here to discuss the movement, were told last night there is a need for drastic curtailment of expenditures in view of a prospective national debt exceeding a hundred billion dollars at the end of the present four-year defense program.

Dr. Arch D. Schultz, director of the chamber's research department, asserted the nation's defense outlay would cost each gainfully employed person more than $500 annually for four years.

"Strictest economy in public expenditures must be practiced if the American form of government and the nation's economy are not to be submerged in a tax blackout," he declared.

Dr. Schultz suggested these means to effect a successful drive against non-defense spending:

1. Demand scientific reduction in expenditures so that the burden of sacrifices may rest upon the federal government as well as upon local officials and citizens;

2. Demand that congress reduce subsidy appropriations and departmental requests;

3 Assure congress that no complaint will be made in reducing subsidies

Paul J. Daugherty, director of the chamber's social security department, warned that expansion of the federal society security system, as mentioned by Washington officials, would increase the present tax on Ohio wage earners by approximately $100,000,000 annually.

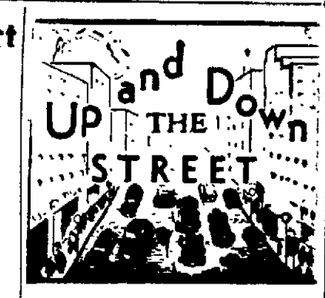
Up and Down THE STREET



Don't be surprised if you find yourself taking a bath in a dry tub. Fred Haag, city plumbing inspector, told council that the attachment by firemen of a booster pump on any of the city's small-gauge water pipes might easily pump the water out of the bathtubs in the vicinity. He explained that the pump would pull so heavily against the small lines that water might be drawn backward through the pipes if the faucets were left open.

When the Brownie Pack of Woodland school found they were without authentic "props" for the playlet they were presenting for their mothers at the school yesterday afternoon they resorted to make-shift. The girls devised a davenport out of three chairs and a blanket, used the piano for a stage curtain and created other furnishings in a similar manner. Mrs M. K. Leggett, assistant leader, played "heavy" for the girls by acting as "curtain puller."

A roof leak in the board of education room in the new John Simpson Junior high school building has troubled school officials and architects for several months, but Architect Lester Redding was more worried yesterday about the "disappearance" of Board Clerk John H. Eisaman who went in search of the roof leak. Volunteering his services, Eisaman climbed into the dark upper reaches of the building, saying he would be down shortly. After he was gone for a half hour and nothing was heard from him, Redding began to worry, fearing that maybe Eisaman was lost. Nearly an hour after he left, the missing clerk returned, covered with cobwebs and dust. But he found the leak.

Playing the pinball machines is one sport a great number of people enjoy, but few of them enjoy it in their home, yet that's the case with a certain rather prominent person in town, whose fascination for pinball devices would cost him a young fortune if he did not keep a machine for his private enjoyment in his bedroom.

FOUND GUILTY ON 3 COUNTS OF EXTORTION

Judge Brands Union Leaders 'Chicago Hoodlums'; Jury Out Two Hours.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—George E. Browne and William Bioff, convicted of using their powerful labor union positions to shake down four motion picture companies for $550,000, faced 30 years in prison and fines of $30,000 each today.

A federal jury deliberated an hour and 30 minutes last night and found them guilty of three counts of violating the anti-racketeering law. Federal Judge John C. Knox, praising the jury for having found what U. S. Attorney Matthias F. Correa called, "these Chicago hoodlums," guilty, revoked their bonds, $50,000 each, and ordered them to jail to await sentencing Wednesday.

If Judge Knox gives them the maximum penalty—and he indicates no sympathy for them—they would be sent to prison for 30 years each and fined $30,000 apiece.

Browne is president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL) and until a few weeks ago, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor. Bioff, former panderer in Chicago, is west coast representative of the IATSE.

They were brought to trial Oct. 8 for extorting, according to the indictments, $550,000 from Loew's, Inc.; Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.; Paramount Pictures and Twentieth Century-Fox.

But Bioff, the only defendant to tesufy, admitted collecting "over a million dollars," and collateral issues, not mentioned in the indictment but introduced to show that Browne was involved with Bioff, accounted for $200,000 more.

In his summation, United States Attorney Matthias F. Correa told the jury:

"If these racketeers, these Chicago hoodlums, can get to a place where they can cast their shadows over the lives of 125,000 American workers (the membership of the IATSE) and their families, it constitutes, in my mind, gentlemen, a national scandal. I'm quite certain your verdict will let fresh air into a lot of homes in this country. Certainly that is something that is eminently desirable.

"Now, I don't believe that there is a firmer believer in labor unions than myself. But all labor will doubtless be glad to have the unions purged of such individuals as these If union labor is to endure, it must rid itself of men who stand ready to sell out labor when it suits their purposes."

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Pull the Star Lever.

IF YOU'VE ever paid a night club cover charge, if you've paid $4.40 to see a musical, if you've grabbed a ticket from the shill in front of a dance hall, if you're a Thursday night regular at Lindy's, if Broadway Rose has called you sweetheart — then, brother, you're registered automatically You're eligible to vote in the Broadway elections of 1941!

Kilgallen

Broadway, a delightful unincorporated village, is built like a fireman's scaling ladder, its rubbery length as twisted as a mobster's moral code. Its civic officers have mighty titles and lowely titles and titles not usually found on a political ticket—but enough titles to make the election fruit for heated debate: And there are only two tickets—the Reform ticket, and the Star ticket.

This newspaper has been kind enough to donate this space to the Star ticket, which is running on a strict platform of Fun and Frolic. For news of the Reform ticket, turn to page 103.

Here's the Star ticket:

FOR PRESIDENT: George M. Cohan! He gave us laughs that were scrubbed and clean, but still funny. He came up the hard way. He writes, he dances, he sings, he performs in portraits of tenderness. The Reformers say that he has always been Mr. Broadway and that is power enough. We say Mr. Broadway is a title with glory only, and now is the time to give him more than glory. Mr. Broadway for president!

FOR VICE PRESIDENT: John Broderick! He drinketh not, nor does he smoke. His fists are like the anvil of the village blacksmith. He cannot hear the crinkle of dollar bills because his ear on that side is deaf. Pull the Star lever for Johnny Broderick—his heart is shaped like a sheriff's star!

FOR SECRETARY Irving Berlin! Irving wrote the songs of the nation—all in black ink—and he made most of them love songs. We rest our case for him on that note. For assistant secretaries The Andrews Sisters, in charge of Harmony; Tito Guizar in charge of Latin-American good will; Harry Richman, in charge of Miami; Bing Crosby, expert on Hollywood.

FOR TREASURER: Jock Whitney! He wears the dollar sign neatly and no Broadway grouser can complain of the way he's dispersed the long green. His assistants on the same platform will gladly let their press clippings speak for them—Alexis Thompson, Horace Schmidlapp, Huntington Hartford, 3rd and Alfred Bloomingdale.

FOR DRAMA DIRECTOR: William "Wild Bill" Saroyan, living example of the old adage which holds that you can't keep a good man down even if he's bad—so long as he's interesting. And you know that when Bill's handling the typewriter, there's never a dull moment. More than that, he's the original be-satisfied-or-your-money-back man!

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE: Victor Moore! This job needs a fellow with an honest face, and he's got it. It needs charm and tact, and bless his heart, he's got them, too. It needs a lad who can say almost anything and get by with it—and he can. He's cast in the perfect mold and he's cute, too. Vote for Victor Moore!

And don't forget his Ambassadors. Arthur Treacher to England, Xavier Cugat, to Mexico, Mischa Auer to Russia, Jean Sablin to France. And to China—who but George Jean Nathan?

POISON KILLS 7 ELEPHANTS

Circus Officials Are Puzzled About Where Pachyderms Contacted Arsenic.

(By International News Service)

ATLANTA, Ga.—The deaths of seven elephants of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus within 24 hours remained a mystery today following discovery that all of the elephants apparently died of arsenic poisoning.

Disclosures that the pachyderms had swallowed "large amounts" of arsenic was made by Dr. T. B. Glower, chief veterinarian for the state of Georgia, but just where the animals came in contact with the poison puzzled circus officials.

One theory advanced was that the elephants were poisoned accidentally in Charlotte, N. C., last previous stop of the circus, when they were allowed to graze on grounds formerly occupied by a chemical works.

Eight other elephants in the Ringling herd of about 70 were described as seriously ill today. A strange fact was that each of the animals fatally stricken was the "lead" elephant of an act.

Loss to the circus was placed between $70,000 and $100,000, but of greater importance from the standpoint of the circus was the fact that replacing the animals would be extremely difficult because of the war.

Two circus employes, Milt Taylor, 47, a clown, and Ernest Lindemood, an advance agent, also died within the 24-hour span, but circus spokesmen said their deaths were a coincidence not related to the deaths of the elephants.

Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Mansfield officiating.

Burial will be in the Old Mission cemetery, Upper Sandusky.

AMERICAN 'MR. CHIPS' GETS LAST WISH, BURIED AT SCHOOL

(By Associated Press)

LANCASTER—The picturesque Hocking hills, radiant in fall foliage, today cradled the body of an obscure octogenarian—Stephan A. Gortner, whose heirs are "anyone's children who needed help."

Death claimed the aged bachelor in a Mt. Carmel hospital room at Columbus Monday—his 82nd birthday.

He expressed a last wish that he might be buried in the private cemetery of the Lancaster Boys' Industrial school, where for nearly 30 years he taught industrial arts to wayward youths.

State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood readily granted the request.

Gortner, born on a Muskingum county farm, was the son of a Methodist minister. As a young man he operated a printing shop in New York City; he went to New Mexico as an expert photographer; joined the staff of the Barry school at Rome, Ga., devoted to the education of mountaineers' sons, and, briefly, published the Amanda, O., Press.

At the industrial school Gortner dedicated himself to the task of teaching recalcitrant hands constructive habits—woodwork, weaving, basketwork. He could play almost any instrument, friends said, and encouraged his charges to study music.

He also became a minister, licensed to preach in the Methodist Church South, and sometimes served as industrial school chaplain

The teacher's children "were anyone's children who needed help," said his brother, W. N. Gortner of Columbus. Associates sometimes mentioned him as a "sort of American Mr Chips."

Services for Gortner were conducted yesterday in the school chapel. The Protestant, Catholic and Jewish chaplains joined in final tribute as the institution's choir sang his requiem in the presence of a thousand young inmates.

WEEK LEFT

Nov. 15 Deadline For Mediation Plan In Mine Dispute.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt's 11-man defense mediation board today had another week to reach a recommendation for settlement of the labor dispute between United Mine Workers chieftain John L. Lewis and steel companies owning coal mines.

Lewis set a Nov. 15 deadline for board action after he called off a strike of 53,00 miners on the appeal of the president. The board was given the case, involving the sole issue of a "union shop," under a peace plan worked out by the president.

Board chairman William H. Davis has been driving for a recommendation by the end of this week.

Beer Glass Brings Rescue of Five Airmen From Sea

LONDON —(AP)—A pint of beer drawn at just the right moment won a coast-guard inspector's thanks today for the keeper of "The Crown" in the Norfolk seaside village of Sheringham.

Landlord Charley Holsey held the foaming glass up for a critical look against the light. As he raised his eyes he saw a speck on the sea.

Lifeguards, called as a result of his providential glance, rescued five exhausted Polish airmen from a liferaft.

NEW TYPE TANK RUNS IN WATER

Trackless Amphibian Designed For Use on Land or On the Water.

(By United Press)

NEW ORLEANS—If a full-scale test model of a tank now being built here proves as effective in action as it looks on paper, the United States may have a self-contained blitzkreig.

Invented by Morris Poche, a 34-year-old machinist, the tank is a trackless amphibian, designed to travel at 60 miles an hour on land, to churn along at 15 in water, to keep a-rolling if any one of the three wheels on each side is shot away and to give the turret gunner a 360-degree sweep.

Length will be about 16 feet and weight seven tons. Officials say it is planned for mass production, with an all-welded body to which armor plate may be riveted or bolted.

Poche set out six years ago, he said, to invent a new knee-action for automobiles, but the Japanese-Chinese war diverted him to tanks. He has completed a 43-pound, 33-inch model of sheet metal, which he runs with an electric motor. But he expects the full-scale tank would be powered either by a gasoline or a Diesel engine.

Replacing the caterpiller tread are six drum-like, knee-action wheels with small steel paddles which afford a grip in marshy land and serve as paddle wheels in water. Inside these cleated drums are separate rubber-tired wheels allowing the tank to take modern highways in stride.

"As for maneuverability," Poche said, "it'll turn in its own length on land or in water. Another feature is a new-type shutter and a revolving sleeves shield that will give the man in the turret a 360-degree sweep with his gun."

The model being built will mount one 37 millimeter gun and two machine guns, and will be manned by a crew of three.

Sees Great Era Of Prosperity When War Ends

BERKELEY, Cal. —(INS)— Contrary to widely expressed opinion, the belief is held by Prof. Charles Edward Winslow, formerly of Yale university, that unequalled prosperity and opportunity will arise from the present European conflict.

Winslow, lecturing this fall at the University of California, declared:

"Assuming that Hitler is defeated, the young people of today can look forward to great opportunities and a very exciting and promising world in which the United States must obviously for its own sake play a leading role."

An international authority on public health and housing problems, Winslow has studied the populations of Europe, Asia and Latin America in his work as medical director of the League of Red Cross societies and a member of the Health committee of the League of Nations.

LEARN THE Thriftier CUTS OF MEAT
EVERYONE LIKES A STEW
... and how thrifty it is to make

Bring right to the table in kettle. A glamorous buffet dish.
To make a Super Meat Stew, ask your meat-man for 2 lbs. of beef, lamb or veal stewing meat cut into 2-inch cubes.
Now try this recipe: Brown meat in a hot, dry pan. Add a No. 2 or 2½ can of tomatoes, one-inch pieces of celery, small carrots, salt, pepper, bay leaf and cloves. Cover and simmer one hour, or until meat is tender. Add partially cooked onions and slices of green pepper. Cook 20 minutes more.
Cooked potatoes, cauliflower or Lima beans may be added (cook 10 minutes longer). Serves six.

BIOGRAPHY OF DARROW NEW ON LIBRARY LIST

Volume By Irving Stone Now Ready For Distribution Along With Others.

Termed "a magnificent biography of a great American," Irving Stone's new book, "Clarence Darrow For the Defense," now available at the Mansfield Public library, is the story of a man who defied public opinion and braved the scorn of his friends in order to champion an individual or a cause he believed to be right.

Stone describes Darrow as a man who had something in him of Tom Paine, of Thomas Jefferson, and of Abraham Lincoln and makes the story of Darrow's life exciting and important.

The story of another American, Frank Buck, is told in the autobiographical study, "All In a Lifetime," in which the author describes his Texas boyhood, his struggles to earn a living in Chicago, and ultimately his adventure in the jungles from which he returned to supply animals for zoos and circuses.

A WOMAN WRAPPED IN SILENCE by John W. Lynch is a touching and human portrait of the woman who was the Mother of Christ—a narrative poem of special distinctiveness, universal in its appeal, and written in fluent verse of exceptionally high quality.

In Pierre VanPaassen's THAT DAY ALONE, many characters, famous and humble, unique personalities, little-known incidents in history — pass through the pages of this prophetic and philosophical book. Though fearless in its uncompromising analysis and in its conclusions, its message is far from hopeless. And always the author searches for the five righteous men through whom our civilization may be saved.

Other non-fiction:

BEST PLAYS OF 1940-41 ed. by Burns Mantle; THE BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE, by Sarovan; MEDICINE SHOW, by Welber.

BETWEEN TWO AUTUMNS by Percy Marks is the story of a year in the life of a Westchester family and concerns a charming stranger blown into the sanctuary of Tom Steele's home on the wings of a violent October storm. Pink remains for a year, and though he is handsome and seemingly faultless, he is strangely baffling. What was the flaw in his character that made his wife divorce him and his sister expel him from her house? A psychological puzzle — entertaining and readable.

FIRE IN THE SKY by Tarleton Collier is an odyssey of an American woman whose earliest recollections were of a one-room, dirt-floored cabin in Georgia. From there she goes on to a southern lumber camp, a sailor's boarding house in Mobile, to a small southern hotel, and then finally, to the splendor of a luxury hotel in Chicago. Her story is that of a woman's uphill fight to find a place for herself in the turmoil of modern life.

LADIES DAY by Chard Powers Smith is a vivid portrait of an era, the 1880's and 90's. The action centers mainly about Race Kirkwood, a reckless industrial leader who laughs and the persons of the period—and idealistic Sally Lathrop, who loves while she disapproves of him. The novel authentically reflects all the surging excitement, strife and lawlessness of the times.

OTHER FICTION: TRAIL DOWN by Haycox; UNKNOWN GARDEN by Holloway; A TIME TILL COME by Varble.

NEW AVIATION BOOKS: HOW TO FLY A PLANE by Oldham; INSTRUMENT FLYING by Siems and Zweng; AIRPLANE METAL WORK 2 vols. by Robson.

TECHNICAL SUBJECTS: HYDRAULIC MACHINERY; FITTING PRACTICE; ELECTRICAL AND RADIO NOTES FOR WIRELESS OPERATORS; STEAM FOR INDUSTRIAL PROCESSING AND POWER; STEAM ENGINES AND BOILERS; DRILLING AND GRINDING; ELECTRO-PLATING AND ANODISING by Rosslyn; CABLES AND WIRES; PATTERN-MAKING AND FOUNDRY WORK; LATHEWORK.

IN NEW POST AT WESTINGHOUSE

Osborne, Former Mansfielder, Named Aid To President In Charge of Defense.

L. E. Osborne, former Mansfield Westinghouse official, has been named assistant to the president and placed in charge of the company's national defense subcontracting program, George H. Bucher, Westinghouse president, announced today at Pittsburgh.

Osborne, who was manager of manufacturing and engineering for the merchandising division at all Westinghouse plants for two years, was located in Mansfield until last January.

He was granted a leave of absence in January to join the staff of the defense commission in Washington. Since then he has served as chief of the heavy ordnance section in the production division of the office of production management.

President Bucher said the position now held by Osborne was created "to expedite the letting of contracts and furnish a central point for distribution of information to and from the interested governmental agencies.

Westinghouse is "farming out" defense contracts to more than 300 small firms, Bucher said. The subcontracts include orders for dies, jigs, fixtures, gauges, screw machine parts, moulded plastics, cast iron and brass castings, and general machining of medium and heavy parts. Osborne will handle negotiations for defense subcontracts.

Joining Westinghouse in 1910 at the age of 16 as a tool clerk, Osborne trained newly hired workers for the company during the first World war to help boost the Westinghouse production of war materials. Later he was works manager of the Westinghouse plant at Newark, N. J., and Springfield, Mass. He is a native of Verona, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

ABSENCES UP

BUCYRUS—Illegal absences in Crawford county rural schools for the first six weeks cost the county schools nearly $100, Supt. Glen C. West reported today in releasing his attendance record for the period. Absences numbered more than 100 days higher than for the same period last year and due to illness showed a drop as compared with last year's figures.

A total of 936 days' absence because of illness was recorded.

THEATERS

Farce Comedy.

"Nothing But the Truth," a hilarious farce comedy starring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard opens Saturday at the Ohio. Well-stocked with such names as Edward Arnold, Helen Vinson and Grant Mitchell the picture hinges upon a stockbroker's bet claiming that he can tell the truth for 24 hours. To prove it he insults all the guests on a house boat, is dunked into a live-bait tank and finally loses beautiful Paulette Goddard, at least for a time. The picture is all fun to which Willie Best, as a slow-motion valet, Catherine Doucet and Rose Hobart contribute.

Three-Cornered Romance.

Ruth Hussey and Ellen Drew conduct a battle for Melvyn Douglas in the comedy, "Our Wife," opening Saturday at the Madison. In the role of a band leader down on his luck, Douglas meets inspiration in the form of Miss Hussey just about the time the divorce action undertaken by his gold-digging wife is due to become final. Ellen Drew, in the wife's role, changes her mind when she learns of her husband's promising career and a battle royal ensues. Charles Coburn and John Hubbard are others in the cast.

"Texas," thundering epic of the west after the Civil war, is the co-attraction. William Holden, Glen Ford, Claire Trevor and George Bancroft are in the cast.

Nolan Drama.

"Dressed to Kill," with Lloyd Nolan and Mary Beth Hughes opens at the Ritz today with "Apache Kid," starring Don "Red" Berry as the second feature.

Sea Farce.

"Sailors On Leave," a gay film dealing with the boys in Uncle Sam's sea forces, opens Saturday at the Park with William Lundigan and Shirley Ross in the romantic leads. Generously sprinkled with music the picture concerns the adventures of a gob who is allergic to women. He is framed by two pals who fake a letter to him saying that he will inherit $25,000 providing he married before his 27th birthday. Complications of a hilarious nature follow. Cliff Nazarro and Chick Chandler are in the cast. Frank Buck's "Jungle Cavalcade," is the second picture.

Political Thriller.

Frank Morgan and Ann Rutherford top the cast in "Washington Melodrama," at the Majestic and the second picture, "Lone Rider Ambushed," presents George Huston.

Tygers Battle Bulldogs In Mud Ankle Deep Tonight

Sport Podge by REX HESS

This item doesn't mean much to high school football fans. They've been sitting on those rented bleachers at the north end of Stadium field for several seasons now.

To baseball fans the transaction is an indication that the Mansfield Braves owners have definitely made up their minds to move out of the Fairground.

If, and where the Braves are to play ball next season are questions yet to be decided. Both probably hinge on the amount of help the Cleveland Indians are prepared to give to keep the Mansfield link in its farm system.

It's no secret that the chief inspiration for moving from the Fairground came from Buzz Wetzel, head of the Indian farm system, although the Braves management had long been unhappy over mounting rental and other conditions in their relations with the fair board, including the fact that the Braves had to tear down their fence and put it back up every time the Fairground was used for something else besides baseball.

So with the Indian farm chief and the Braves management seeing eye to eye on the subject, this talk about a new ball park for the Mansfield club may not be so much fluff after all.

The Fremont Green Sox, champions of the Ohio State league, who had been looked on as the only club to make money in the circuit last season, are now crying over a $1,500 deficit.

The red ink went on the books when Judge William G. Bramham, czar of minor league baseball, recently ruled Lefty Lloyd Fisher, Third Baseman Walt Siera and Outfielder Buddy Eagan free agents, and took away their sale value from the Fremont club.

Seems the contracts of the three players weren't in order, but Bramham did nothing about those contracts during the playing season, waiting until the season was over and the players had been placed on the block.

* * *

"I have no sympathy for Fremont," declares Satterlee. "They ran out of doubleheaders toward the end of the season, taking no chances of losing the second half pennant and meeting Mansfield in a playoff.

"They could have made that $1,500 in a playoff with the Braves. Now, let 'em cry."

* * *

Fremont Sports Scribe Dick Behr, reporting on the absence of league newspapermen for the dinner at Fremont the other night, says:

"Rex (Mansfield) Hess was probably busy thinking up jingles."

S-a-y! That reminds me. There hasn't been a jingle in this word jungle for some time now.

It's true the jingler wasn't there,
To wield the fork and lift the cup.
But just to keep a happy Behr,
Here's a jingle, coming up.

Nimrods Sharpen Eyes In Contest

With the rabbit and pheasant season opening Nov. 15, Mansfield nimrods are polishing their hunting eyes in a contest sponsored by the Yuncker brothers sporting goods store.

* * *

Object of the contest is to determine how many words can be formed from the words "Yuncker Red Head" and three prizes, a shot gun, a hunting coat and hunting boots are offered as prizes.

* * *

Closing Nov. 14, the contest has already received some entries, store officials said today, but so far the highest number of words turned in was 320 and judges believe the count will probably be much higher for the winner.

Rams Held to Tie In Closing Game

Anthony Scores On Long Run

Madison Speedster Goes 88 Yards For Touchdown.

By BUD SPRUNGER
(News-Journal Sports Writer.)

MADISON high school and Fostoria St. Wendelin battled to a 6-6 tie in the Madison gridiron mud last night in the closing game of the season for both teams.

Except for three long runs, one by Madison's Bob Anthony and the other two by the St. Wendelin Mohawks' H. Stoner and Smith, the tilt was a drab affair as both teams were slowed in their running attack by the mud.

St. Wendelin scored in the second period when Bradner went over from the one-yard line after 20 yards of penalties and 12 yards of runs by Smith had carried them there from the Rams' 32.

Madison's score came on an 88-yard sprint by Anthony in the fourth quarter. Held on off tackle plays all evening the speedy back finally tore loose around his right tackle and outsprinted the Mohawks to the goal line.

Madison threatened in the opening period when a Fostoria kick went out of bounds on the St. Wendelin 30-yard line. Stiffening their defense, the Fostoria team held for three downs and Harold Hammer kicked to the 11.

From there the Mohawks were penalized to their own one-yard line and kicked to their 30. The Rams were again held and the Mohawks took over on their 29 and piled through for a first on the 39. Two plays later E. Stoner took an end around and romped to the Ram 25-yard-line.

In four more plays Smith plunged to the Ram 13 for another first down, but three plays later Boff was caught 20 yards behind the line of scrimmage and fumbled.

* * *

Opening their attack the Rams went two plays and three yards before they too fumbled. This time the referee aided the Mohawks with two handy penalties making it first down on the Ram 11 and Smith plunged to the one-yard line from where Bradner went over.

The kick for extra point went wide and low.

For the rest of the first half the game resolved into a mud coated punting duel.

Greatest part of the third quarter was fought out between the Fostoria 12 and 22 yard lines with the Rams and the Mohawks plunging and kicking and being penalized.

Late in the period Smith again broke loose and from his own 15 galloped to the Ram 45 before he was dragged down from behind by Paul Wynn.

Led by Reynold Bell the Rams toughened and held at this point and Fostoria booted to the Madison 12.

And from there Bob Anthony scored. Starting off around the right side of his line, he cut in off tackle and squirmed and sprinted 88 yards for the sole Madison tally.

A plunge for conversion failed and the evening's scoring ended, but not before the Rams had made one last threat.

Picking up a St. Wendelin fumble on the Fostoria 22 yard line, they plunged in four downs to within inches of a first on the 12. The Fostoria club held once more and after an exchange of punts the game was ended.

ASHLAND COLLEGE TRACK MAN FAVORED AT MIAMI

OXFORD—(AP)—Gilbert Dodds of Ashland college, national collegiate title-holder, and Virgil Alston of Miami, undefeated in dual competition this fall, are favorites in the annual Ohio A. A. U. cross-country meet scheduled Saturday over the Miami university four-mile course.

Varsity teams, a Miami freshman unit, units from Cincinnati, Bowling Green and Oberlin, and unattached runners from Toledo and Cincinnati are entered.

Printers Beat Chris-Crafts

Trim League Lead To Margin of Two Games.

Second-place Mansfield Printing keglers scored a 2-1 victory over the Commercial "B" league-leading Jones Chris-Crafts last night to move within two games of the top position.

The Printers chalked up high total for the league of 2854, while Chris-Craft had 2814 and Ringside 2780. The Ringside turned in high game of 1034, Mansfield Rug & Linoleum had 1028, and M. & M. Service station 985.

* * *

Jim Weems rolled high individual total of 638 on games of 171-223-244, W. Mabee had 635 on 202-224-209, and Leo Yuncker 611 on 207-179-225. Weems' 244 was high game.

Packs Power for Bulldog

TOM HARRIS

Powerhouse of the Canton McKinley Bulldogs, who threaten Mansfield high's undefeated record in the Tygers' homecoming grid game tonight at Stadium field is big Tom Harris, fullback, whose line smashing usually is good for a few necessary yards for first down or touchdown. According to the Canton Repository, Harris has become the Bulldogs' most dependable ball carrier.

Ohio State Favored Over Wisconsin as Graf Returns

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's Bucks, with four Sophomores in the starting lineup, but with Sparkplug - Fullback Jack Graf back in harness after a two-game layoff due to a knee injury, were "all set" today for Saturday's Big Ten tussle with Wisconsin.

The Badgers' schedule called for arrival in Columbus early today, breakfast in a downtown hotel, and then a drive to nearby Magnetic Springs for an afternoon workout and a night's rest. The Bucks, after a short warming up session on the Stadium turf, were to adjourn late today to a country club for the night.

Graf's return, after being out of the loss to Northwestern and the win over Pittsburgh, made the Ohioans slight favorites over the Badgers.

* * *

Along with Cheroke, Ohio will present Sophomore John Rosen at center, and Sophomore Ends Bob Shaw of Fremont and Leon Schoenbaum of Huntington, W. Va.

Saturday's contest will be the 13th between the Bucks and Badgers. Ohio having won six, lost four and tied two. The greatest margin of victory ever racked up by either was the 21-0 whitewash applied to Wisconsin back in 1915—third contest of the series.

* * *

Mingled with the other outstanding features of the game will be the personal duel between Graf and the opposing fullback, Sophomore Pat Harder, Western conference scoring leader with 32 points. Graf has scored 24 points in three games.

* * *

Brown and Wisconsin's coach, Harry Stuhldreher, have added incentives to win this one. Both are alumni of Massillon high school, where they starred at football, Brown coming in the year after Stuhldreher went to Notre Dame to earn All-America fame as a member of the Four Horsemen under Knute Rockne.

Massillon's band and some 5,000 Stark county residents will be among the huge crowd to see which coach comes off the winner.

All Flatbush Mourns Leo

'The Lip' Will Wear Yank Suit In Movie.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—There is mourning throughout the fabulous land of Flatbush today. Tears are falling like autumn rain and despair blankets the Borough of Brooklyn like a fog.

The word has come from Hollywood that Manager Leo Durocher of the beloved Bums is going to appear in a movie in which he will wear the detested livery and spangles of the New York Yankees. It is not the worst crime that Leo the Lip could commit against the peace and security of the people of Brooklyn, but it certainly is next to the worst. The unpardonable sin, of course, would be for him to put on a New York Giants suit—even if it was only for the sake of art.

Forced to the wall and threatened with torture if they didn't tell all, the Hollywood press agents admitted Durocher had been signed for a picture based on the career of the late Lou Gehrig.

Durocher and Gehrig were teammates on the Yankees back in 1927-28-29 and in this picture the Lip will portray himself as a young, aggressive shortstop.

News that Durocher intended to appear in public attired in a Yankee uniform reached Mr. Frank Swataka, a rabid Brooklyn fan, at a time when he had just deposited a dime on the bar for a beer. He was so astounded by the news that he made no protest whatsoever when your agent offered to pay for the libation.

"Thanks," said Mr. Swataka, quickly convoying his dime back into his pocket and taking a long, reflective sip. "The Lip in pitchers, huh? Some guys have all the luck, don't they? Think of the Lip kissing them Crawfords and Turners and Loys and getting good dough for it. Me, I'd be a volunteer."

* * *

It was explained to Mr Swataka that the Lip's role probably would not call for him to go through any scenes depicting the sweet surrender of love. He would be a ball player—but a ball player wearing the New York Yankees' uniform.

"I seen funny things in pitchers," said Mr. Swataka," but I never thought I'd see The Lip in a Yankee suit. What us guys won't do to that Lip next summer when he comes out to coach."

We asked quickly, "you mean the . . ."

"The boid," said Mr. Swataka, "but good."

RAMS MISS PRACTICE

NEW YORK—(INS)—Fordham's Rams moved to Pittsburgh today, probably with less preparation for their contest against the Panthers than they've had for any game this year. Rain forced the Rams to curtail their drill yesterday, but Coach Jim Crowley said his charges are in the pink of condition.

Mansfield Fights to Retain Clean Record

Both Teams Reported In Good Condition For Important Game

MANSFIELD'S TYGERS and Canton McKinley's Bulldogs will slosh around in mud ankle deep tonight as they tangle in their important high school gridiron battle at Stadium field.

Undefeated Mansfield will be fighting to keep its record clean and remain in the running for state high school championship consideration, while once-defeated McKinley will be striving to take the role of giant-killers, with hopes of bumping off Mansfield, and then treating Massillon the same way.

The Tygers, celebrating their homecoming before a crowd expected to exceed 8,000, shouldn't be worried much by the mud. They have done pretty well in the oozy going all fall, and the strong Mansfield line has given very little ground on mushy fields.

Down through the middle of the field, between the 20-yard lines, and 15 yards in from each sideline, the gridiron was three inches deep in mud this morning. Efforts were being made to dry out the field, but it won't take many cleated shoes to turn it into mush again.

A wet field may force the Bulldogs to rely almost entirely on power, as the mud should slow down Speedster Jack Crider and hamper the McKinley aerial attack. The Bulldogs have power in big Tom Harris, colored fullback, whose line smashing has become the most important part of the McKinley offense.

Both teams will be handicapped by the absence of an injured star tonight, Adam Brandt, fullback, being lost to the Tygers, and Aaron Simms, pass-catching blocking back, to the Bulldogs.

Otherwise both the Tygers and Bulldogs will be at full strength for the game which will find Mansfield seeking revenge for the 38 to 7 defeat handed the Tygers at Canton last fall.

With a pep rally slated for the last period of school this afternoon, the Tygers held their pregame skull practice this morning in the first period, when final plans of offense and defense were gone over.

Officials for tonight's game will be Roy Uber and Jerry Newman of Cleveland, and C. W. Rupp of Cuyahoga Falls.

Youngstown, Akron Meet

Buckeye Grid Fan Gets 22-Game, 3-Day Menu.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Buckeye football fans have a three-day top-flight menu on tap for this week-end, all sorts of possibilities being wrapped up in the 22-game program.

The headliner is the Buck-Badger Big Ten scrap at Ohio State stadium, as Wisconsin meets Coach Paul E Brown's boys before a crowd of around 60,000.

Tonight, at Youngstown, Akron's Zippers and the Penguins meet in a classic. Youngstown, unbeaten in its last 13 games, and boasting six victories and a tie this year, is favored to win.

The Case - Baldwin Wallace event at Berea pits the Scientists, State and Ohio conference pacesetters, against the fourth-best offensive squad in the state, Baldwin Wallace having run up 140 points while winning three, losing two and tying one.

Sunday's all-Catholic struggle between Dayton and Xavier at Cincinnati has an "anything can happen" status, for the two top point-counting teams in the state will mix it up. The Musketeers, beaten only by Kentucky, have rolled up 183 points and allowed 41, while Dayton, loser only to Tennessee, has scored 177 and allowed 32.

On Saturday's slate are these Ohio conference tilts: Marietta at Capital, Ohio Northern at Mount Union, Bowling Green at Wittenberg, Oberlin at Wooster, John Carroll at Kent State and Ashland at Kenyon.

Touchdown Tactics

By CARL G. SNAVELY
Cornell Univ. Football Coach.

THE SITUATION: Your team has the ball on your own two-yard line, second down, ten yards to go, ten minutes to play, and you are leading in the score 6-0. The game has been close and even all the way, your kicking is fair in all departments. There are no unusual weather conditions and the field is in good shape.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

1. Punt?
2. Run a play from punt formation?
3. Fake kick and run?
4. Running play from regular formation?
5. Pass?

(Answer in Tomorrow's Paper.)

By STUBB ALLISON
California Football Coach.

THE SITUATION: It's your ball in mid-field against your school's traditional rival, third down with eighteen yards to go, due to a bad pass from center. The second quarter is just starting, and the game up to the present time looks very even from an offensive and defensive standpoint.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

ANSWER

First, naturally our team captain and his team mates would determine why the center passed so badly. Is he o. k. or has he "lost his marbles" temporarily due to a stiff jolt, or other injury. Determine this by calling signals to him and be sure he understands and can function properly.

Throw a long fifty-yard forward pass down either sideline. If complete it means a touchdown, surely a fine gain. If incomplete, it means merely the loss of a down. If intercepted it should still be just as good as a punt.

Brothers Meet In Iceland After Long Separation

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(INS)—Ralph and Travis Glenn, brothers serving with Uncle Sam's sea forces, accidentally bumped into each other one day in our newest occupied post in the north, Iceland.

Ralph and Travis had been separated for more than a year and neither knew where the other was stationed.

Ralph, on board the Mizar, arrived in Iceland and disembarked with the rest of the crew on leave. He just happened to see a familiar figure, realized it was his brother, Travis. Travis had been stationed in Panama, but was moved to Iceland, where he is clerk in the 1st marine brigade.

Both boys, graduates of Arsenal Technical Training high school in Indianapolis, had enlisted in 1940. Travis joining the United States marines and Ralph joining the naval reserve.

DUROCHER GETS VOTES IN BROOKLYN ELECTION

NEW YORK—(INS)—Leo "Lippy" Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, evidently made a great hit with some Brooklyn voters when he piloted "Dem Bums" to the National league pennant.

A checkup of votes cast in Brooklyn for city council revealed today that Durocher received some write-in votes, along with former Mayor James J. Walker.

'POOSH 'EM UP' TONY THROUGH WITH BASEBALL

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Tony Lazzeri, the "poosh 'em up" kid of the New York Yankees for many years, was out of a baseball job today. President Charles Graham of the San Francisco Seals, the club Lazzeri joined as second baseman last winter, disclosed that the veteran has been given his unconditional release.

Lazzeri said he had no immediate plans.

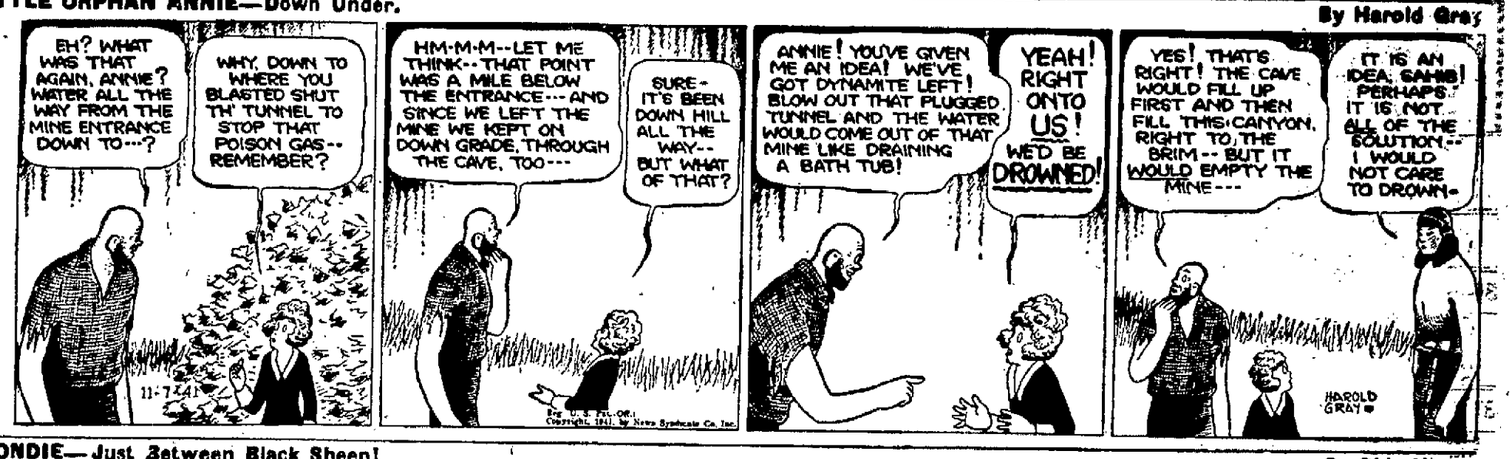
POPEYE— Paddle Your Own Canoe!

PAM—Only Coincidence? By A. W. Brewerton

I THOUGHT I'D STRUCK A HOT TRAIL IN THIS CAREY GRAHAM CASE, PAM, TILL IT BLEW UP IN MY FACE!
OH, YES, I TRIED THE NAME ON MASON, TOO! HE SEEMED TO REACT FAVORABLY. THE NAME SEEMED FAMILIAR TO HIM!
11-7
BUT OUR RECORD STATES THAT, ALTHOUGH A RANSOM WAS PAID, AND THE CRIMINALS NEVER CAUGHT, CAREY GRAHAM WAS FOUND, BUT ONLY AFTER HE'D BEEN KILLED--DROWNED!
OH, DAVID, HOW AWFUL!
SO THAT ENDED MY "HOT TRAIL," BUT IT'S A MOST REMARKABLE COINCIDENCE--THAT NAME, "CAREY"!
DAVID, COULDN'T THERE BE AN ERROR? IN THE REPORT, I MEAN?
HARDLY, HONEY! F.B.I. RECORDS ARE GENERALLY VERY ACCURATE! BUT I HAVE WIRED THE PORTLAND OFFICE FOR A COMPLETE ACCOUNT OF THE CASE TO DATE.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Down Under. By Harold Gray



EH? WHAT WAS THAT AGAIN, ANNIE? WATER ALL THE WAY FROM THE MINE ENTRANCE DOWN TO---?
WHY, DOWN TO WHERE YOU BLASTED SHUT TH' TUNNEL TO STOP THAT POISON GAS--REMEMBER?
11-7-41
HM-M-M--LET ME THINK--THAT POINT WAS A MILE BELOW THE ENTRANCE--- AND SINCE WE LEFT THE MINE WE KEPT ON DOWN GRADE, THROUGH THE CAVE, TOO--- SURE- IT'S BEEN DOWN HILL ALL THE WAY-- BUT WHAT OF THAT?
ANNIE! YOU'VE GIVEN ME AN IDEA! WE'VE GOT DYNAMITE LEFT! BLOW OUT THAT PLUGGED TUNNEL AND THE WATER WOULD COME OUT OF THAT MINE LIKE DRAINING A BATH TUB!
YEAH! RIGHT ONTO US! WE'D BE DROWNED!
YES! THAT'S RIGHT! THE CAVE WOULD FILL UP FIRST AND THEN FILL THIS CANYON, RIGHT TO THE BRIM-- BUT IT WOULD EMPTY THE MINE---
IT IS AN IDEA, SANDY! PERHAPS IT IS NOT ALL OF THE SOLUTION-- I WOULD NOT CARE TO DROWN-

11-7
HANDS UP, LADY--- THIS IS A HOLDUP--- NIX--NO ROUGH STUFF
THERE AIN'T NOBODY GOING TO HOLD ME UP--- YOU AIN'T GOING TO GET MY MONEY!
NOW LOOKA WHAT THOSE BUMS MADE ME DO--MY MONEY ALL OVER THE SIDEWALK--I BETCHA I DON'T FIND BACK EVERY PENNY OF IT!

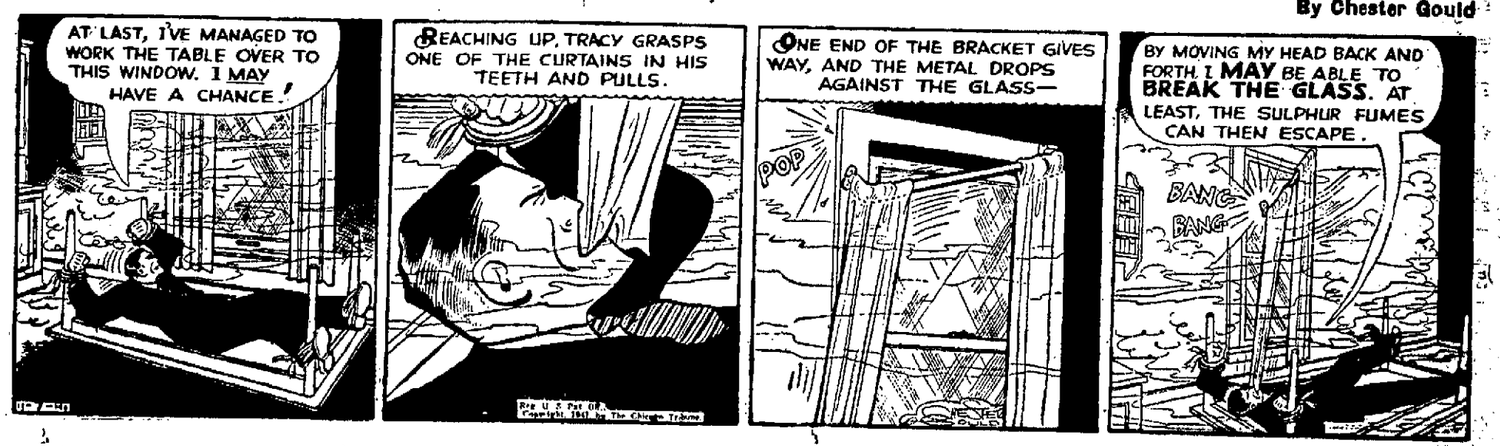
DICK TRACY—Curtain Time. By Chester Gould



AT LAST, I'VE MANAGED TO WORK THE TABLE OVER TO THIS WINDOW. I MAY HAVE A CHANCE!
REACHING UP, TRACY GRASPS ONE OF THE CURTAINS IN HIS TEETH AND PULLS.
ONE END OF THE BRACKET GIVES WAY, AND THE METAL DROPS AGAINST THE GLASS—
POP
BY MOVING MY HEAD BACK AND FORTH I MAY BE ABLE TO BREAK THE GLASS. AT LEAST, THE SULPHUR FUMES CAN THEN ESCAPE.

NEED $100? HERE'S WHAT TO DO

Tell us how much you need, $20 to $500; how much you can repay monthly; and answer a few simple questions.

Loans made three ways: (1) on signature; (2) on car; (3) on furniture. No endorsers. Friends or relatives are not told. Fair treatment in case of sickness or unemployment. Payments include charges of 2% monthly on balances of $300 or less and ½% monthly on any remainder—the same rate to everyone. Nothing else to pay. To apply—phone, write or visit office. Money ready next day—or sooner if necessary.

Find here the cash loan you need. Choose a monthly payment plan.

STOCK MARKET POSITION SEEN AS HEALTHIER

Bidders Prop Up Parts of List, But Many Leaders Fail To Get Support.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Sufficient bidders came in to prop parts of today's stock market but many leaders failed to attract support.

Moderately in front at times were Anaconda, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, U. S. Steel and Western Union.

Lagging tendencies persisted for General Motors, Chrysler, American Can, General Electric and Eastman Kodak.

Brokers suggested the news was a bit better marketwise and that yesterday's substantial reaction had put the list in a healthier technical position.

Market optimists found nothing much to cheer about in this week's merchandising summaries.

Dun & Bradstreet, for instance, reported that while retail spending throughout the nation exceeded the comparable week last year by 10 to 15 per cent gains were "traced largely to a rise in prices and were considered disappointing in view of the lag in sales" in the like week a year ago.

COUNCIL OKAYS WOODEN BRIDGE

Tables City Consent Measure Once But Finally Passes It To Assure Structure.

wooden bridge on Main street," said Porch. "Riding through the county, you can see scores of concrete bridges, yet in Mansfield, the largest city in the county, the commissioners want to build a wooden bridge."

George C. Kyle, Fourth ward councilman, supported Porch's statements, declaring that he believed the project should be investigated before giving the county permission to proceed.

The resolution was tabled only to be brought back for consideration more than an hour later. Councilman C. N. Shultz urged its passage, stating "no one wants a wooden bridge but if the county doesn't build a wooden bridge, it would not build any." Other council members agreed with him.

The commissioners announced two months ago that the bridge which collapsed last year would be replaced by a wooden structure. The state had agreed to pay one-half the cost of erecting a steel-reinforced concrete bridge if the county would contribute to the construction on an underpass beneath the Erie railroad on U. S. 30-N.

The state's original estimate of the project, however, was only about $18,000. This was later raised to $22,000. When the state announced that they would pay half the cost only if a $40,000 bridge was constructed, the commissioners abandoned the plan and decided on a wooden structure, paying for it without state help.

When the resolution was brought back for its second consideration, all council members except Kyle voted for its approval.
